Adron Doran: He Led The Fight

By W. E. CRUTCHER
Publisher, The Morehead News

Throughout this special Golden Anniversary supplement there are references to and articles about the magnificent building program undertaken at Morehead State University during the past two decades. Much has been said about the almost unbelievable growth in students and faculty during this same period. And much has been said about the growth and development of the academic areas and the unprecedented increases in state funding.

To say that Adron Doran played the major role in all of these developments is at best an understatement. Everyone knows that this former Western Kentuckian has worked 25 hours a day to bring Morehead State University to her current level of high acceptance in the region and throughout the state and nation.

But there are a number of things about this tall Kentuckian, who came to Morehead State University as president in 1954, which many people may not know. It is with this thought in mind that the remaining paragraphs in this article will not deal with buildings, programs, finances, and personnel at MSU—but rather will deal with Adron Doran, the man.

Little is known of the financial help which he personally has made available to countless hundreds of students during the past 18 years. Never has a needy youngster been turned away from his office. Records have not been kept, but the successes of those students who were able to stay in school through his personal generosity have been more than ample reward to Adron Doran.

Financial help has been but one way he has helped needy students. One observer once said, "He would have made one whale of a counselor." And many students with weighty problems who have emerged from his office with much lighter hearts will testify to the validity of this observation.

For Adron Doran has always had an open door policy, particularly when it comes to students. Another observer claims that "A student can get into the president's office easier than anyone else. Just let Adron know that there is a student with a personal problem, and everyone else will have to wait while he helps solve the student's problem."

His humble childhood and early struggles probably conditioned him as much as anything else to want the youth he comes into contact with to have an easier time of things. One of the things he can point to with great pride is the large number of students he has helped get into medical school, law school, dentistry, veterinary medicine and other professional schools. And legion are the number of students he has helped find jobs for in the past 18 years.

This great personal interest in youth goes way back to his days as a principal in Western Kentucky. In his first job he had a youngster who just didn't have the financial resources to finish high school but did have the ability to make a car run like a clock. The youngster's father had died and the boy came into Adron's office to say goodbye.

Young Doran, who was making $64 a month at the time, just couldn't let the talented youth quit school. So he took him into town, bought a broken down Model-T Ford for $35 and gave it to the youngster to repair. He did and began hauling other farm youth to school for a small fee, and not only graduated but went on to become highly successful. When he graduated from Boaz High School, the Dorans sent him to a school for mechanics in Nashville. He is now an instructor in a technical school in Houston, Texas, and two of his sons have been students at MSU.

Religious activities have always been in the forefront in Adron Doran's life. In fact, had it not been for the church (he has been a life-long member of the Church of Christ), Adron Doran would never have gotten beyond high school. Members of his home church in far Western Kentucky saw great promise in the gangling youngster and sent him off to a two-year church college in Tennessee. He began preaching and singing in gospel quartets and today is considered one of the outstanding ministers in the church.

When he and Mrs. Doran came to Morehead in 1954, the community had no Church of Christ. Thanks to their leadership and financial backing, Morehead now has a strong Church of Christ. Dr. Doran also has encouraged other churches to establish in Morehead and provide student centers near the campus.

For years, the only vacation Adron and Mignon Doran took was a week in the summer when he would go to a small church in Western Kentucky or Northwestern Tennessee and conduct a revival. Whatever the church would pay him, he would always use for some church-related activity with the money often going to Freed-Hardeman College, the two-year institution where he got his start.

Many more stories could be recited by this publisher about Adron Doran the man, but space just doesn't permit. History has already recorded the many unprecedented accomplishments of this man and I would like to devote the rest of this article to an enumeration of just a few of the honors, awards and accomplishments which have come his way.

Leading off the list would probably have to be his recognition in 1971 as only the fourth Kentuckian in history to receive the coveted Horatio Alger Award which has been awarded to just 200 great Americans.

Other top awards and achievements include:

- * Election to four terms in the Kentucky House of Representatives.
- * Speaker of the House of Representatives for one term.
- * President of the First District Education Association.
- * President of the Eastern Kentucky Education Association.
- * President of the Kentucky Education Association.
- * Member of the National Advisory Council on Education Professions Development, appointed by President Lyndon B. Johnson.
- * Member of the Education Commission of the States.
- * Recipient of the Outstanding Civilian Service Medal by the United States Army.

- * Named Kentuckian of the Year by the Kentucky Press Association.
- * Recipient of the Distinguished Kentuckian Award presented by Gov. Edward T. Breathitt, Jr.
- * Recipient of the Lincoln Key Award Presented by the Kentucky Education Association and the Lincoln Foundation.
- * Named Outstanding Alumnus of the University of Kentucky.
- * Named Outstanding Alumnus of Murray State University and served three terms as president of the Murray Alumni Association.
- * Gov. Louie B. Nunn declared "Adron Doran Day in Kentucky" on Sept. 1, 1970.

I could go on and on with an almost endless list of achievements recorded by this complex, yet down to earth man who has meant so much to Morehead State University, Rowan County, the whole region, the Commonwealth and the nation.

But suffice to say, this is a much better community and a much better world because Adron and Mignon Doran came our way.

Eagles Have Won 18 Sport Titles

Morehead State University athletic teams have won 18 championships in four sports in two leagues, the Kentucky Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (KIAC) and the Ohio Valley Conference (OVC).

The first conference title was the KIAC basketball crown in 1940-41 under Coach Ellis Johnson. The most recent championship was OVC basketball last season under Coach Bill Harrell.

Eight titles have been won in basketball, two in the KIAC and six in the OVC. Coach Len Miller's Eagles took the second KIAC crown in 1943-44. Coach Bobby Laughlin's teams won the OVC four times: 1955-56, 1956-57, 1960-61 and 1962-63. Bob Wright coached the OVC champs in 1968-69.

The basketball Eagles have appeared seven times in post-season tournaments with a 5-8 record. They are 3-4 in three NCAA tournaments. Play in the now-defunct SIAA tourney produced a 2-2 mark. MSU is 0-2 in the NAIB tourney, now the NAIA.

Four crowns have been won on the gridiron, two in each league. Coach Ellis Johnson directed the Eagles to KIAC championships in 1942 and 1946. Coach Guy Penny was the OVC's championship mentor in 1962 and 1966.

MSU has copped four baseball championships. Stan Radjunas coached the KIAC winner in 1947. Coach Sonny Allen guided the OVC titlists in 1957 and 1969. Dr. Rex Chaney coached the 1963 champs in the OVC.

Dr. Nolan Fowler's teams won the OVC track championship in 1955 and 1956.

Bill Spannuth, now a professional, won the OVC's individual golf title in 1970.

THE DESIGNER . . . Bill Dodson, Minford, Ohio, junior at Morehead State University, displays MSU's Golden Anniversary Celebration emblem which he designed for the use in the year-long observance.

Emblems Designed By Dodson Family

Designing special anniversary emblems for Morehead State University seems to run in the William M. Dodson family.

"It's just a coincidence that my mother designed the 25th year celebration emblem," said Bill Dodson, Minford, Ohio sophomore at MSU, who devised MSU's official golden Anniversary emblem.

Dodson's mother, Mrs. Jean Thompson Dodson, made the design used to commemorate the school's 25th anniversary while she was enrolled in 1947. It was printed in the "Raconteur."

"Mom had mentioned drawing the earlier symbol but I had forgotten about it until I told her that my design had been accepted for the new anniversary," Dodson said.

He was among several art and industrial design students on the Golden Anniversary Design Committee. Members pooled their ideas and met several times before selecting Dodson's sketch as the most appropriate.

Design Is Circular

"Since the official emblem needed to be adaptable to several uses, I had to work within certain limitations," Dodson said.

His finished product, which he prefers to call a "logographic design," is circular. The background is gold with dark blue "MSU" lettering and lighter blue mountaintops taken from MSU's official letterhead. "Morehead State University Golden Anniversary" is in dark blue around the outer edge.

The emblem is appearing in numerous university publications and several other places. It first appeared on MSU's Golden Anniversary birthday cake in March.

Dodson, who is studying art, prefers drawing to other art media. He plans to become either an artist or art teacher upon graduation.

"Bill is a very receptive student who accepts suggestions and follows directions well," said Doug Adams, assistant professor of art. "He has a lot of potential as an artist."

Cage All-Americans

Morehead State University has had six basketball All-Americans since Earl Duncan, a guard from Georgetown, became the first in 1943. Others were Warren Cooper, Brooksville, guard, 1945; Sonny Allen, Morehead, guard, 1950; Dan Swartz, Owingsville, center, 1955; Steve Hamilton, Charlestown, Ind., forward, 1957; and Leonard Coulter, Danville, forward, 1972.

W.E. Crutcher, publisher of The Morehead News, received the award in 1968 and Morehead Mayor William H. Layne was the 1969 recipient.

Dr. W.H. Cartmell, chairman of MSU's Board of Regents and a Maysville surgeon, was honored in 1970. Gov. Louie B. Nunn received the award in 1971 and B.F. Reed of Drift, Ky. was the 1972 honoree. Mr. Reed is a member of the Board of Regents.

Five Different Names

MSU has had five names in its 50-year history. It began as Morehead State Normal School, became Morehead State Normal School and Teachers College in 1926, shortened to Morehead State Teachers College in 1930 and abbreviated again 1948 to Morehead State College. Morehead State University came along in 1966.

Can a bank as old as we are think as young as we do?

Most definitely, if an old adage (. . . slightly modified) "you're as old as you feel (act)" is applied to our good name. Because we recognize that the future of our bank is closely tied to the broad social and economic developments in the community and area in which we do business. All our personnel are encouraged to be participants and leaders in the social, cultural and economic factors that affect the future of Ashland, Boyd County, and Eastern Kentucky.

Changes At MSU Truly Amazing

By DON YOUNG
Director, Alumni Affairs

When I start thinking about the changes that have occurred since my family arrived on the MSU campus in 1936, it's really hard to believe.

There was a faculty picnic preceding the 1939 flood. One of the fortunate happenings of that tragic event was the lemonade Mom had left from the picnic. It provided us with something to drink while the city water system was being repaired.

I watched when the dances were held in the lobbies of the dormitories and on the roof off the first floor of Allie Young Hall.

Our next door neighbor, who provided rooms for girls who were attending school, had to go to the Dean of Women each year and have her home approved as a "proper place" for young ladies to stay off campus.

Enrolled At University Breckinridge

I went to football games when the players wore leather helmets and Morehead State had a drum major who twirled a baton on top of a tall pole.

I enrolled at Breck for the first grade and played softball on a playground which was separated from the boulevard by a row of large trees.

There was, for a short time, a wax museum in Morehead and some of the college students took our class to visit these lifelike wax figures.

In the early 40's, most of the students left the campus and went into the service and were replaced by hundreds of men in white Navy uniforms. I used to go with my mother to faculty wives' gatherings where they rolled bandages and packaged gifts for the soldiers overseas.

Parking Was Plentiful

In the fifth grade, I was in the college band when it practiced in the balcony of Button Auditorium and the majority of its players were those of us attending Breck.

I remember the boulevard when parking was no problem and the grass median and street lights separated two-way traffic.

People didn't drive much during the war — everything was rationed, including gas and tires. There was a USO in the Martindale Building and many members of the faculty helped keep it open. There was a Navy machine shop in the basement of Thompson Hall and the cafeteria was in the basement of Allie Young Hall.

Breck won the state basketball championship in 1946 and we yelled for days.

Jitterbugging was the dance craze in the 50's and the big dances were held in the Button gym. Sock hops on weekends were in the Grill in the basement of Allie Young Hall.

The year I was a junior at MSU, the Dorans came to Morehead. Mrs. Doran, then as now, was involved with the students. Many of us worked with her on many kinds of projects and she always made the work seem fun.

I was graduated in 1955 and not on campus during the tremendous growth period of the 60's. But, for those of us who remember the years before, MSU's status now is nothing short of fantastic.

First Three MSU Presidents

Dr. Button was born Nov. 19, 1863 at Oquawka, Ill., and first came to Morehead in 1887 to help his mother found the Christian Normal School. He was educated in Illinois public schools and Transylvania University and received a theological degree from the College of the Bible there in 1887. He received an A.M. degree from Bethany College, W. Va., in 1908. From 1911 until 1923, Dr. Button served as state supervisor of rural schools under the sponsorship of the Rockefeller Foundation. He returned to Morehead as first president of the Morehead State Normal School in 1923 and continued in this capacity until his retirement in 1930. He died in 1933. Dr. Button also served as mayor of Morehead, as a newspaper editor and as pastor of the Christian Church. Button Auditorium was named in his honor.

Dr. Frank C. Button (1923-30)

DR. JOHN H. PAYNE (1930-35)

Dr. Babb, Morehead State's third president, came to the college after 16 years as superintendent of schools in Mt. Sterling. He was born in Crittenden, Ky., in 1884 and received a B.A. degree from the University of Kentucky in 1911 and an M.A. from the same institution in 1923. After his graduation from college, Dr. Babb taught high school at Springdale, Ark., for two years and at Henderson (Ky.) High School for three years. He was principal at Henderson for a year before assuming the superintendency at Mt. Sterling. In 1946, he was director of unemployment compensation in Kentucky.

DR. WILLIAM H. VAUGHAN
(1940-46)

Dr. Vaughan, who had been academic dean of Morehead State since 1928, was named its fourth president in 1940 and served until 1946. He received an A.B. degree from Georgetown College in 1923, did graduate work at the University of Chicago, and received a master's degree and, in 1937, a Ph. D. from George Peabody College for Teachers. He was superintendent of schools in Louisa before coming to Morehead. In 1946, Dr. Vaughan accepted a position as director of associations and professor of education at Peabody. He later retired from Peabody and presently resides in Nashville. Dr. Vaughan is MSU's only living former president.

ADMINISTRATION BUILDING . . . Located in the center of campus, the Administration Building first appeared as a two-story facility in 1963. A third story was added in 1965.

DR. WILLIAM J. BAIRD (1946-51)

Dr. Baird, Morehead State's fifth president, served from 1946 until his death in 1951. A native of Knox County, Ky., he spent much of his life in Berea and was a graduate of the Berea Preparatory and Berea College. He was on the staff of Berea schools from the time of his graduation in 1927 until he left to join the faculty of the Berea Schools in Rome, Ga., in 1942. In that same year, he was awarded an honorary doctorate by Berea College. Dr. Baird's education also includes graduate work at Columbia University, Cornell University, the University of Wisconsin and the University of Kentucky.

During a leave of absence from Berea in 1940, he visited 56 campuses in the United States as a representative of the Danforth Foundation. Baird Music Hall was named in his honor.

Dr. Spain, Morehead State's sixth president came to Morehead from Peabody where he was dean of instruction. He was graduated from Bethel College, Tenn., and earned a master's degree from Peabody and a doctorate from Columbia. He began his educational career in his native Carroll County, Tenn., where he was a teacher and then a principal. Later he taught at Arkansas State and at Florence State and was a faculty and staff member at the University of Kentucky from 1946 to 1949.

Dr. Spain resigned the Morehead presidency in 1954 to accept a position as dean of the College of Education at the University of New Mexico. He later became superintendent of the Albuquerque public school system and died there.

He holds an M.A. from Murray and an Ed. D. from the University of Kentucky. His early educational experience included 15 years service as teacher, basketball coach and high school principal. Before coming to MSU, he was Director of the Division of Teacher Education in the Kentucky State Department of Education. Dr. Doran also served four terms as a member of the Kentucky House of Representatives and was Speaker for one term. Morehead Pioneer In Radio

In 1965 Morehead State University became the first regional university in Kentucky to own and operate a radio station.

WMKY, established as a 10-watt station, began operation in June, 1965.

The original staff included seven students and one full-time faculty member. In the early operation, broadcast days were determined by the school calendar with the station off the air during vacation periods.

Today, WMKY has a full-time staff of seven persons, 27 part-time staff members and one graduate assistant. The station operates 18 hours daily on a 365-day schedule.

WMKY's facilities are designed to serve as a laboratory and are dedicated to develop the broadcast capabilities of MSU students. Nearly all on-the-air personnel are students, either volunteering their time or employed on a work-study basis. More than 100 students have declared radio-television as a major or minor this year.

Since 1968, WMKY has received more than $200,000 from MSU and the federal government for expansion and development. On April 5, 1971, WMKY began a new era in public broadcasting as the old 10-watt campus station expanded to 50,000 watts with coverage extending into six states.

Less than one month later, WMKY joined the National Public Radio Network as one of 143 charter member stations serving 38 states.

The MSU Board of Regents established the Institute of Public Broadcasting on July 1, 1969, as the operating agency for WMKY. Donald F. Holloway is the institute's director.

The station's prime coverage area, according to the 1970 census, includes more than 125,000 persons in a 12-county region.

Daily programming ranges from news and special music to popular music. Classical and easy listening music is broadcast in the afternoons. Coverage of news events on campus and throughout the region is compiled by the student news staff, and complete coverage of all MSU sports is entering its eighth season.

The station, dedicated October 9, 1971, continues program development which will provide services to varied audiences of Eastern Kentucky.

WMKY operates at 90.3 on the FM dial.

SPLENDID GOLF LAYOUT . . . Morehead State University was the first public university in Kentucky to acquire its own golf course. The nine-hole layout, located on US 60 east of the campus, is a very sporty nine with out of bound markers found on seven of the nine holes. Wesley Martin, a sophomore from Winchester and the son of Mrs. and Mrs. Willard Martin, is shown here approaching the second hole.

GOLDEN YEARS OF PROGRESS

RADER HALL (Administration Building) as it looked in its early days. Erected 1926.

In most aspects, life tends to wither and die with age. Untrue of course, in the case of Morehead State University. This great institution of higher learning has changed with the times in order to give the people of Eastern Kentucky a chance for a better and higher education. The changes are clearly visible in these two pictures. Rader Hall (above), as the Administration Building, is the oldest of the many structures on the MSU campus. Erected in 1926 and completely renovated in 1970, Rader Hall clearly has changed, as shown.

MSU Has Had Two 'Perfect' Students

In the 45 years since Morehead State University graduated its first class in 1927, two students have compiled perfect 4.0 (straight A) averages as undergraduates with all of their work done at MSU.

Both were Morehead residents and graduates of local high schools.

The first such graduate was Robert Douglas Fraley in May, 1962, who amassed 129 hours for a Bachelor of Science degree in business administration.

Following in May, 1968, was Ronald L. Richardson with a 131 hours and a Bachelor of Science in biology with emphasis in pre-medicine.

Fraley, the son of Morehead Postmaster and Mrs. Robert G. Fraley, became a certified public accountant after receiving a master's in business administration from Indiana University. He presently is controller of Gulf Republic Financial Corp. in Houston, Texas.

Richardson, a 1972 graduate of the University of Kentucky College of Medicine, is interning at the UK Medical Center and hopes to start a residency in internal medicine next fall. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Richardson of Morehead.

Fraley, a 1958 graduate of University Breckinridge School, spent two years in Belgium as an audit manager for Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co., an international public accounting firm.

While at MSU, he was elected to

Ronald L. Richardson

Robert Douglas Fraley

Who's Who, served as vice president of Student Council, and as president of two academic honoraries. He was in the Honors Program and served on the university's curriculum and instruction committee.

Dr. Richardson, a 1964 graduate of Rowan County High School, attended medical school on a full scholarship from the New York Life Insurance Co.

He is married to the former Connie Turner of Morehead, a 1969 graduate of MSU. She is a research technician at UK.

Journalism Major

Effective this fall, MSU began offering a major in journalism which allows students to concentrate in either print or broadcast media. MSU has had a minor and an associate degree in journalism since 1966.

Ann Davis Performance Nov. 2, 3, 4

When Ann B. Davis, well known television and stage actress, performs in "Matchmaker" Nov. 2-4 as the highlight of the Golden Anniversary season of MSU Theatre, it will be the play's second run on campus in the past decade.

"Matchmaker" was one of four plays produced in the 1963-64 season. It was directed by Mary L. Smith and presented in May.

The history of theatre at MSU dates to May, 1924, when the Glee Club, directed by Miss Evelyn Royalty, presented "Gypsy Rover." The three-act romantic musical was performed in Thompson Hall.

Miss Royalty, who was head of the Department of Expression and Reading, directed productions through 1930. She also advised the Dramatic Club, which listed 20 members in the 1927 yearbook.

Some of the plays directed by Miss Royalty include "Joint Owners in Spain," "Neighbors," "The Diabolical Circle" and "The Younger Generation."

Neville Fintel served as the drama club adviser in the early 1930's, and the club's name was changed from Royalty Drama Club to the Revellers.

In the late '40's, groups performing plays changed names from the Campus Players to the Campus Theater Guild. In 1950 the drama club became the Morehead Players, the name still in use.

In the early '50's, some plays toured the region under the sponsorship of the Morehead Woman's Club with proceeds going for scholarships.

"Jack and the Beanstalk," "Hansel and Gretel," and "Hiawatha" were among the early touring productions.

MSU's first summer theatre production was "George and Margaret" in July, 1952. "The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife" was presented in the summer of 1954 and "Night of January 16" was the 1955 summer production.

Plays were presented in the Little Theater in the Combs Building for the first time during the 1962-63 school year. Before the Little Theater was built, major productions were held in Button Auditorium and some smaller events in Thompson Hall.

The most active summer theatre program was in 1971 when Dr.

Ann B. Davis

William J. Layne, an MSU graduate who returned to direct the drama program, and C. Lance Brockman received the program with a schedule for four plays.

These were "Miracle Worker," "Charley's Aunt," "Barefoot in the Park" and "Niccolo and Nicolette."

The 1971 and 1972 summer theatre program were successful and another schedule is planned next year.

Each spring the theatre group and the Department of Music combine in a major musical production.

MSU Theatre has produced some quality children plays. Some of the children's shows presented in the 1950's include "Jack and the Beanstalk," "Hansel and Gretel," "Hiawatha," "Land of the Dragon," "Simple Simon," "Family Portrait," "Wizard of Oz" and "Babes in Toyland."

"Hansel and Gretel" was presented again in 1968. Some of the more recent children's plays are "Niccolo and Nicolette," "The Unwicked Witch," and "Mirror Man," which was presented Oct. 5-7.

This year's Golden Anniversary season includes "Birds," "Summer Tree," "Send Me No Flowers," and "Guys and Dolls."

Miss Davis, who portrays "Alice" in "The Brady Bunch" and was a regular on "The Bob Cummings Show" a few years ago. She is MSU's Golden Anniversary actress-in-residence and will be a guest lecturer in classes as well as appear in Thornton Wilder's "Matchmaker."

HATFIELD SPOKE HERE . . . U.S. Sen. Mark Hatfield of Oregon was the commencement speaker in the spring of 1968. The energetic Hatfield was a popular choice who challenged graduating seniors to become more active in political affairs. He is shown here with President Adron Doran.

IT'S OFFICIAL . . . Circuit Judge John Keck of Sandy Hook administered the oath of office to Dr. Adron Doran as president of Morehead State University in 1954. Keck, who later became state highway commissioner, made sure the young educator had not previously fought in a duel as the Kentucky constitution requires of all duly sworn officials.

First Budget Had $500 For Library

MSU's library began in 1922 with 4,360 books donated by the Christian Church and with a book budget of $500.

In the past 50 years, the volume has risen to 235,157 books and a budget of about $263,000.

The library was first located in Burgess Hall, a building which stood on the site of the present Johnson Camden Library and housed the chapel, music rooms and the home of President Frank C. Button.

Burgess Hall, which was named for Mrs. A.O. Burgess, national president of the Christian Church Women's Organization, was torn down in 1929.

The new library opened on Jan. 22, 1931. It was named in honor of Johnson N. Camden, Jr., a U.S. Senator from Versailles.

Mrs. Nannie G. Falconer served as librarian for seven years as the first professional staff member. Miss Edith Fullen, a graduate of Columbia University, was librarian from 1929 to 1931.

At the time of its opening, Johnson Camden Library was considered one of the finest in the South. At first, only the second floor was used as a library. This floor contained two reading rooms, a stack area, a cataloging room, office and circulation desk.

The first floor housed the Department of Art and the third floor consisted of faculty offices, study rooms, and conference rooms.

By 1932 the number of books contained in the library had increased to 15,225, the book budget was $1,250 and the professional staff had increased by one. Mrs. Alice Palmer Morris was librarian and Miss Marguerite Bishop was assistant librarian, a position she held until 1971.

Miss Ione M. Chapman became librarian in 1946 and began teaching classes on library usage that year.

In 1958, Mrs. Dorothy Conley joined the staff and started the Materials Center, a combination of curriculum, illustrative materials and audio-visual aids. Miss Clarica Williams became fulltime library science teacher that year and Mrs. Suzanne Boggs took over the Breck Library.

By this time, the art department had moved to Allie Young Hall and the library had the entire use of the building.

Construction began on the new wing of the library in 1964. Completed in 1965, it now houses the periodical department and humanities collection.

In 1965, microfilm service was initiated and a photocopier was added. In 1970, the TWX (teletype) system and the Dial Access Center were added. the teletype machine permits the library to borrow books from universities throughout the United States and Canada. The Dial Access Center, located in the Combs Building, permits students to hear sound tapes or selected studies automatically.

The Johnson Camden Library professional staff now numbers 22 and 16 clerk-typists and four graduate assistants also work there.

Dr. Jack D. Ellis is director of libraries. He succeeded Miss Chapman in 1968.

The library subscribes to almost 2,000 professional journals and magazines and 40 daily and weekly newspapers. It has 12,000 recordings, films, filmstrips and tapes and 70,000 microfilm and microcards.

Some of the services the library provides to faculty and students include typewriter rentals, tape recorders, projectors, photo copiers, conference rooms and a browsing room.

BIRTHDAY EAGLE . . . Morehead State University President Adron Doran and Kentucky's First Lady, Mrs. Jean Ford, inspect an MSU Bald Eagle painting which Dr. Doran presented to Governor Ford in Frankfort to open Morehead State's Golden Anniversary Celebration. The governor presented Dr. Doran with copies of a legislative resolution honoring the university on the 50th anniversary of passage of the bill which led to MSU's creation in 1922. Dr. Doran returned to the campus and cut the first slice of a 12-foot high birthday cake at an outdoor party attended by more than 2,000 students, faculty members and other friends of MSU.

Morehead Bald Eagle Conceived In 1970

By RAY HORNBACK
V.P. for University Affairs

Year after year, Morehead State University President Adron Doran said to members of his staff, "We need a beautiful, accurately portrayed symbol of Morehead State University." But no one came up with an acceptable solution — that is no one until Dr. Doran called together a group in January of 1970 and said, "I think maybe I have the answer."

His proposal to the group was to commission wildlife artist Gene Gray to paint the American Bald Eagle and make a limited edition of prints available to alumni and friends of the university. It didn't take the group long to agree to the plan, and the following week found the Lexington artist and his associates from Animal Graphics, Inc., on the campus for a luncheon meeting. The Board of Regents unanimously approved the idea and commissioned Gray to do the painting.

An agreement was soon reached to send Gray to Central Florida where he would spend two weeks studying the American Bald Eagle in its natural habitat. In early March of 1970, Gray journeyed to the Ocala National Forest in Florida and spent 12 to 16 hours a day observing and sketching this nearly extinct bird.

He returned to Lexington, armed with his sketches and color slides, and began the creative process of transferring his image of this great American bird to canvas. The work was completed by mid-June and he delivered the painting for approval.

Project Financially Successful

When unveiled, viewers saw a magnificent painting of a noble bird in an attack position. University officials were astounded at the beauty and vividness of Gray's painting, prompting President Doran to say,

"This is a striking portrayal of the bald eagle and we are greatly pleased that Gene Gray has given us a painting worthy of display as the official Morehead State University Bald Eagle."

The confidence which a university president had placed in Gene Gray's ability to produce a painting worthy of a great university had paid off. And yet, it had not been a great gamble, as Gray is recognized as one of America's finest wildlife artists. Most of his paintings have become collector's items and the graduate of the Ringling School of Art in Sarasota, Fla., is certain to gain nationwide acclaim in the days ahead.

Gray considers himself an illustrator of animals and a painter of life who has an intense love of wildlife. He also is deeply concerned with conservation in his native state.

A limited edition of 2,000 prints of the Morehead State University Bald Eagle was available originally and all proceeds above costs are being used by the Alumni Association for scholarships to needy students. The Alumni Association gladly agreed to handle the sale of the prints and no funds of the Commonwealth of Kentucky have been involved.

Gray and President Doran signed each of the Morehead State University prints and other members of the faculty and staff signed prints when requested by the purchaser.

Sales have brought in over $25,000 and the project is now well in the black. Prints are still available and may be purchased at the alumni office.

President Doran's original idea blossomed in a most fruitful fashion and as a result Morehead State University, whose athletic teams have long been called the Eagles, today has a majestic painting which will forever stand as the official Morehead State University Bald Eagle.

ROTC Available, But Not Required

Morehead State University applied for an Army ROTC program in 1967 during the midst of the Vietnam conflict.

The program began in the fall of 1968 with an enrollment of 692 cadets in Military Science I, 15 in MS II and 37 in MS III.

From the outset, there was much debate concerning the merits of requiring ROTC for two years. In November, 1968, compulsory ROTC was reduced to one year.

In April, 1971, the required one-year ROTC requirement was dropped. The MSU Board of Regents authorized a special committee to study ways of acquainting students with the problem of national security.

The ROTC Study Committee, headed by Dr. John Kleber, developed an innovative concept entitled National Security 100 which gives entering freshmen an opportunity to find out more about the military without obligation.

Students enrolling in the course receive one semester hour of credit. At the end of nine weeks, the students elect whether or not to enter the ROTC program.

Course lecturers include both MSU Faculty members and distinguished guest speakers. Of the 170 persons enrolled in the original national security class, 55 elected to enroll in ROTC.

Lt. Col. Thomas A. Harris served as professor of military science at MSU from the fall of 1968 until his retirement from active service in February, 1970. Col. Arthur L. Kelly, who has since earned a master's degree from MSU, succeeded Col. Harris.

In June, 1970, 18 MSU graduates became second lieutenants at the first MSU commissioning ceremony.

An Army ROTC flight training program began at MSU in 1969. Program participants can receive their private pilots' licenses.

ROTC extracurricular activities include the Pershing Rifles drill team, AUSA Company, rifle team, Coed Sponsors, Raider Company, Scabbard and Blade honorary and the Military Police Company.

MSU President Adron Doran received the Outstanding Civilian Service Award from the Department of the Army in 1970 for his support of the ROTC program.

The MSU Army ROTC compares favorably with other ROTC programs in the First Army Area composed of 90 programs in 15 states. MSU's voluntary program is the sixth largest in the area.

Non-Major Degree

Morehead State University now offers a bachelor's degree which does not require a major subject or an area of concentration. The Bachelor of University Studies is awarded upon completion of 128 semester hours with the proper grade point average and the required general education and upper division courses.

IN WASHINGTON . . . MSU President Adron Doran served as a member of the National Education Association Legislative Commission from 1963 to 1967 and as its chairman in 1966. Dr. and Mrs. Doran are shown here in 1966 following an appearance by Dr. Doran before a Senate education committee hearing chaired by Oregon Sen. Wayne Morse, center.

'Allie Young' — The Sage Of Morehead

Much of the credit for locating MSU at Morehead is due the late Allie W. Young, statesman, leader and benefactor.

Judge Young, who was born in Fleming County in 1865, began his fight for the school in 1923, during his first term as a Kentucky state senator.

He played a major role in influencing a state commission to locate the school at Morehead. He was appointed in 1924 as one of the original members of the Board of Regents and served until his death in 1935.

During this period, the promotion of the school's interests was his major concern.

At the first meeting of the Board on April 15, 1924, Sen. Young volunteered to loan the school any sum up to $10,000 without interest to pay expenses for the remainder of the school year.

He taught school in Rowan County and studied law in the office of his father, Col. Zachary T. Young, before entering public service.

His first public office was county attorney of Montgomery County. He was later appointed master commissioner of Montgomery County Circuit Court.

Young was elected circuit judge before joining the Consolidated Coal Company as a general counsel.

Area voters urged him to run for the state senate and he was serving his third term as a state senator from the 31st District when he died.

An eloquent debater, Senator Young quickly emerged as a leader of the legislators. A champion of the common man, he was called "The Sage of Morehead."

When Rowan County celebrated its 100th birthday in 1956, Senator Allie W. Young was selected as the person who contributed the most to Morehead and Rowan County during the first 100 years.

MSU's Allie Young Hall, a women's residence hall constructed in 1926, was named in his honor.

From This Campus Of 1924 Grew The Great Morehead State University Of 1972

now occupies the site of Withers Hall. Johnson Camden Library was built on the site of Burgess Hall. Hodson Hall stood in the area of Allie Young Hall. Hargis Hall stood in the open area west of the existing Administration Building.

MSU Is 50 Years Old, But Dates To Event In 1887

The year 1887 saw the arrival from Midway Junior College of Mrs. Phoebe Button and her son, Frank C. Button, in the Eastern Kentucky town of Morehead — a town with no streets, no sidewalks, no electric lights, no churches, and less than 1,000 people.

Mrs. Button and her son enrolled an orphan girl, Anna Page, as the first student in the Morehead Normal School housed in their small home located where the Adron Doran University Center now stands.

Among the first students were a young man named George Johnson, who now lives in Ashland and is the father of former MSU coach and athletic director Ellis Johnson, and another young fellow named Herb Bishop, who was the uncle of Roberta and Bob Bishop — residents of Morehead.

For 13 years the school was under the control of the Kentucky Christian Missionary Convention and on July 31, 1900, was placed under the control of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions, St. Louis, Mo.

Three wooden structures and Burgess Hall, a brick and stone building costing $10,000, formed the nucleus of the campus. Hodson Hall, one of the three wooden structures, was the last to be torn down.

Mrs. Button died in 1892 and her son carried on the operation of the Normal School until 1911 when J.M.

Robinson became principal. Dr. J. Wesley Hatcher served as principal from 1913 to 1919 and his protege, Harlan Hatcher, an outstanding student in the Normal School, went on to become president of the University of Michigan.

W.O. Lappin, the father of Dr. Warren C. Lappin, became principal in 1919 and served until the school closed its doors in 1922 when only three persons received diplomas at the last graduation exercises.

In the meantime, at its regular session in 1920, the General Assembly of Kentucky authorized a study of the educational needs and facilities of the Commonwealth. The commission appointed to make the study recommended that two new normal schools be established — one in Eastern Kentucky and one in Western Kentucky.

On March 8, 1922, Gov. Edwin Morrow signed the act of the General Assembly providing for a special commission charged with the task of locating the two new normal schools. The members of the commission were appointed by Lt. Gov. S. Thurston Ballard of Louisville and Speaker of the House James H. Thompson of Bourbon County.

Allie W. Young, who ably served as a State Senator from the 31st District during the period from 1924 to 1935, contributed immeasurably to the decision to establish a new college in Eastern Kentucky and to locate it in Morehead.

Dr. Button Elected First President

The doors of the Morehead State Normal School opened for the first time on Sept. 23, 1923, and all that remained of the "Old Normal School" were the products and memories of an educational enterprise which for 35 years had served the young people of the region and had made a major contribution to advancing the cause of Christian education.

Dr. Frank C. Button was named the school's first president and the Morehead State Normal school began operations during the period of post-war prosperity.

The sum of $30,000 was appropriated by the 1922 Session of the General Assembly to hire a faculty, provide the necessary supplies and "put the school in working order." Using the buildings which had formerly housed the old Normal school, Dr. Button began the 1923 year with eight faculty members — Dean Charles D. Lewis, C.O. Pieratt, Miss Inez Faith Humphrey, Miss Evelyn Royalty, Ruby Vansant, Miss Emma Shader, Henry C. Haggan and Dan Holbrook. Miss Anna Carter served as Dr. Button's secretary and Warren C.

Lappin joined the faculty in the spring of 1924 as baseball coach.

Three college students and 70 students in the secondary school greeted the original faculty. By the end of the decade, the enrollment had grown to more than 350 college students representing 31 Kentucky counties and two states.

First Five Buildings Erected

In 1925, the first college newspaper — the More-Head Light — was published and two years later the named was changed to the The Trail Blazer, a name it proudly bears today. In 1927, the first yearbook — The Raconteur — was published and in that same year, Morehead's first four graduates went out into the world with proudly-earned diplomas.

During Dr. Button's administration five buildings were constructed. The old administration building (now Rader Hall) and Allie Young Hall were built in 1926 followed by Thompson Hall and Fields Hall in 1927. The President's home was completed in 1930 and Button Auditorium was constructed in 1929.

In 1926, Morehead Normal School became Morehead State Normal School and Teachers College and was admitted to membership in the Harold Sergent, three-time All-OVC guard, was named the OVC's "Player of the year" in the 1962-63 season. Bobby Laughlin of MSU was picked as the loop's "Coach of the Year" in 1961.

First Team Won

Morehead State University's first intercollegiate basketball team turned in a 9-3 record in 1929-30 and ended the season with a 48-18 win over Pikeville.

Nursing Degree At MSU

Morehead State University expects to award its first associate degrees in nursing next spring.

The Class of 1973 had 21 members when the fall term opened this year. Another 31 enrolled as the Class of 1974.

Since its inception in the fall of 1971, the program has grown to include four full-time faculty members and two part-time instructors.

Classes are conducted on campus with clinical training at St. Claire Medical Center and Daniel Boone Convalescent Center, both in Morehead, Eastern State Hospital in Lexington and Hayswood Hospital in Maysville.

MSU's nursing degree has been approved by the Kentucky Board of Nursing Education and Nurse Registration. Persons who satisfactorily complete the two-year course of study are awarded an associate of applied science degree and are eligible for the state examination to become registered nurses.

New on-campus facilities for nursing are included in the $3.5 million Boyd F. Reed Hall which is now under construction.

LONGTIME LIBRARIAN . . . The late Miss Marguerite Bishop served on the university's library staff for nearly 40 years.

Fourth Kentuckian

When MSU President Adron Doran received the coveted Horatio Alger Award in 1971, he became only the fourth Kentuckian to be so honored.

Four-time Doctor

MSU President Adron Doran holds four doctoral degrees. His first was earned at the University of Kentucky. He since has received honoraries from Ashland College (Ohio), Eastern Kentucky University and Murray State University, his alma mater.

We, at Spring Grove Have Reason to be proud . . . many times over

On the eve of Morehead State University's 50th year, the folks at Spring Grove have the right to boast a little —

1. Spring Grove is the 'Official' supplier of milk and dairy products to the University.

2. Our central plant, and offices from which we serve Eastern Kentucky is located just across the street from the Campus.

3. The Farm supplying Spring Grove and The Spring Grove Plant have a rating of 'Excellent' from the Kentucky Dept. of Health.

Kentucky Association of Colleges.

Dr. Button resigned the presidency on July 24, 1929, but remained on the staff as chaplain and assistant field representative for a year before being named President Emeritus.

Dr. John Howard Payne who was serving as superintendent of Maysville City Schools was named the college's second president on Aug. 1, 1929.

The "Roaring Twenties" came to a close with the dark clouds of the great economic depression casting their shadows over the entire nation which had enjoyed the fulfilled days of post-war prosperity.

And so the stage was set for the Morehead State Normal School and Teachers College to begin its second decade of operation.

Accredited In The 30's

Morehead State Normal School and Teachers College became Morehead State Teachers College in 1930 and graduated 11 seniors that year. Sixty-five different courses were offered, the faculty numbered 22 at the beginning of the decade and the total student body numbered 256. By the end of the decade, the enrollment had grown to 585 and the faculty had increased to 58.

During the 30's, Morehead State Teachers College was admitted to the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, the American Association of Teachers Colleges and the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

The sabbatical leave program was initiated on the campus, correspondence courses were offered, off-campus teaching programs were organized, industrial arts and commerce courses were added, and the debating team won all 25 of its scheduled meets in 1935.

The Campus Club brought the "Hawg Rifle" into the scene in 1936 and Tim Wyant raced 99 yards with an Eastern punt to help give MSU possession of the rifle in the first year of its existence.

Earl K. Senff's "Fight, Fight, Fight for Morehead" caught on and became the official college fight song and the music department got its first practice room in the basement of Fields Hall.

Dr. Payne left the presidency on Sept. 13, 1935. Dr. William H. Vaughn served as acting president from Sept. 13 to Oct. 7 prior to the naming of Dr. Harvey Babb as the institution's third president on Oct. 7.

Dr. Vaughan Named President

Four major buildings were constructed during the decade of the 30's as well as Jayne Memorial Stadium. Built were Johnson Camden Library, 1930, named for former U.S. Sen. Johnson Camden; University Breckinridge School, 1931, named for Robert J. Breckinridge, the sixth state superintendent of public instruction; Lappin Hall, 1937, named in 1958 to honor Dr. Warren C. Lappin; and East Men's Hall (now Mays Hall) was constructed in 1937.

Morehead State's fourth decade has been styled by some as the dormant period of the 40's. Morehead State Teachers College began the decade with a new president when Dr. William H. Vaughn took over the reins on April 30, 1940.

The enrollment in the fall of 1940 was 588 and the college's first foreign student came to the campus from Cuba in 1941. The curriculum was reorganized in 1942 under the quarter system and continued under this plan until 1948.

It was in the early 40's that terrifying world events took every able-bodied male on the campus into the armed forces as the basic freedoms of all Americans were challenged on the battle fields. When President Franklin D. Roosevelt asked Congress to recognize that a state of war with Japan existed in 1941, events moved rapidly.

Navy School On Campus

Many students and male faculty members joined the armed services and enrollment dropped to 255 in the fall of 1942. In the spring of 1943-44, only nine male students were enrolled and the enrollment hit a record low of 166 in the fall of 1944.

MSU's contribution to the war effort included the training of United States Navy personnel as the college facilities were made available for an electrical training school which kept 600 Navy officers and trainees on the campus at all times between 1942 and 1944.

When the war ended in 1945, most of the faculty members returned and many students enrolled under the GI Bill of Rights.

On Aug. 6, 1946, Dr. William Jesse

Baird became Morehead State's fifth president. Dr. Warren C. Lappin served as acting president from July 1 to Aug. 6.

Enrollment for the fall of 1946 had reached 614 and the college appeared to be on the way up during a period of post-war prosperity. But such was not to be the case.

In December, 1946, charges were filed with the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools against Morehead State because of political interference in the administration of its affairs. The college was removed from the association's list of accredited schools and the darkest days in the school's history were ahead.

The enrollment dropped to 435 students in the fall of 1947 — 179 fewer than the previous fall term — and the college faced a gigantic rebuilding program.

The governor named a new Board of Regents composed of outstanding business and professional men from the region and the association was convinced that the days of political interference had ended. Thus, the college was re-accredited in 1948.

Morehead State Teachers College became Morehead State College in 1948 and, by the end of the decade, the enrollment was hovering at the 600 mark — a level which had been established previously in 1940.

"The Dark Forties"

The decade of the 40's ended with the college static — the enrollment had not increased, no new buildings had been erected and the academic programs remained relatively unchanged.

The "Dark 40's" saw Morehead State College survive occurrences which might have ruined a less dedicated institution of higher learning and the "glorious 50's" were just around the corner.

On Jan. 9, 1951, Dr. Baird was

INAUGURATION PROCESSIONAL . . . Registrar Linus Fair led the procession at the 1954 inauguration of MSU's seventh president, Dr. Adron Doran. Behind Fair are Dr. Doran, Gov. Lawrence Wetherby, Dr. Warren granted a leave of absence for health reasons until September and Dr. Lappin was again named acting president. Dr. Baird died on Feb. 19, 1951, and Dr. Charles Spain was named the college's sixth president on May 28, 1951.

Dr. Spain officially resigned the presidency on April 6, 1954, and Dr. Adron Doran was named on the same day as the seventh president of Morehead State and is currently serving his 19th year as president longer than any of his predecessors.

The 1950's witnessed the Korean Conflict and the growth of Communist influence throughout the world. In Kentucky, the passage of the foundation program for education and the development of a sound plan for financing education aided by the passage of the general sales tax were the big items of news affecting education at all levels.

The mid-50's saw Morehead State truly break through in a dramatic fashion. An enrollment at the beginning of the period of just over 600 doubled, then tripled, then quadrupled — until the enrollment was eight times larger than 10 years earlier.

New Approach To Teacher Training

During this period, modern facilities were provided for programs in business, foreign languages, music, industrial arts, home economics, and special education. Programs in pre-forestry, pre-veterinary medicine, medical technology, nursing, foreign languages, and philosophy were added.

Off-campus student teaching and the professional semester was developed in the teacher training program and the guidance and testing services were integrated with the total social, recreational program.

This decade saw MSU become one of the first institutions in the South to fully integrate and become the first state-supported college or university in Kentucky to have integrated dormitories.

Marshall Banks became the first black to play on a varsity athletic team in the Ohio Valley Conference and Howard Murphy was the first black to play football in the OVC.

During the decade the faculty increased to 160. A director of graduate studies was named for the first time in 1957, an alumni director was named and the administrative organization of the college was modernized in 1960 with the arrangement of seven academic divisions as the result of a comprehensive self-study.

Admitted to NCAA

The sound philosophy of service to the region was greatly strengthened by an action program during this period and Morehead State College became the center of regional activities for many varied and diverse groups and organizations.

During this period Morehead State College received recognition as a major college in basketball by the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA).

The total athletic program reached an all-time high in 1962-63 when MSU's football, basketball and baseball teams captured championships in the rugged Ohio Valley Conference.

Baird Music Hall, constructed in 1953, became the first major structure to be built on the campus in 17 years and was part of a $10 million building program which mushroomed between 1953 and 1963.

Buildings constructed during this period were Laughlin Fieldhouse, 1956; Doran Student House, 1957; Lakewood Terrace, 1960; Waterfield Hall, 1960; Butler Hall, 1961; Bert T. Combs Classroom Building, 1961; addition to Button Auditorium, 1961; Industrial Arts and Home Economics Building, 1962; Wilson Hall, 1962; Mignon Hall, 1963; Administration Building, 1963; and 11 faculty duplexes.

The Doran Student House was named for President Adron Doran and Butler Hall for Wendell P. Butler, who has served three terms as state superintendent of public instruction.

Waterfield Hall was named for Harry Lee Waterfield, two-time lieutenant governor of Kentucky. The Combs Classroom Building was named for Gov. Bert T. Combs.

Palmer House Innovation

Wilson Hall was named for Roger L. Wilson, dean of students since 1953 and Mignon Hall for Mrs. Mignon Doran, wife of the Morehead State president.

During this period, a 25-bed infirmary was built, the Palmer House, a 12-room home management house was purchased, and there was extensive remodeling and redecorating of numerous buildings.

As spectacular as the growth at MSU was during the decade from 1953-1963, it was overshadowed by the tremendous expansion yet to come.

1964 was the year which saw construction of Breathitt Sports Center and West Mignon Hall.

East Mignon Hall, Cooper Hall and the W.H. Rice Maintenance Service Building were constructed in 1965. WMKY, an FM radio station, began broadcasting from the Combs Building with 10 watts of power.

The school's crowning achievement came in February, 1966, when the Kentucky General Assembly granted university status. Five academic schools and a graduate division were formed and the first vice presidency was created with the appointment of Dr. Lappin in academic affairs.

Breck was renamed "University Breckinridge School." Four major construction projects — Mignon Tower, Alumni Tower, Normal Hall, Downing Hall and Laughlin Health Building — were completed in 1967 the same year.

Bought University Farm

Opened in 1968 were the Claypool-Young Art Building, Lyman V. Ginger Hall (Education Building) and the remodeled Button Gymnasium. Army ROTC began the same year.

LARGE CONVOCATION AUDIENCE . . . A campus convocation drew a packed house in Button Auditorium in 1956. Weekly assemblies were compulsory for several years.

Three more vice presidents — Dr. Raymond Hornback, university affairs; Dr. Morris Norfleet, research and development; and Roger L. Wilson, student affairs — were appointed. A 212-acre farm was acquired in rural Rowan County.

Added to the campus skyline in 1969 were W.H. Cartmell Hall and Nunn Hall. The Doran Student House was enlarged and renamed the Adron Doran University Center. The fall enrollment was 6,460, MSU's highest.

Construction began in 1970 on Boyd F. Reed Hall which will house the Appalachian Technical Institute. Russell R. McClure was named to the new position of vice president for fiscal affairs. Student Council became the MSU Student Government Association.

Rader Hall was reopened in 1971 after an extensive remodeling project which transformed the oldest campus building into an ultra-modern classroom and office structure. WMKY increased its power to 50,000 watts and moved to an 18-hour-a-day broadcasting schedule.

The most notable recognition of Dr. Doran's career came in May, 1971 when he received the Horatio Alger Award in New York City. He became only the fourth Kentuckian so honored.

MSU's sixth academic school, Business and Economics, was created in 1971.

The 1972 session of the Kentucky General Assembly removed the state superintendent of public instruction from MSU's Board of Regents, expanded the board's lay membership to eight persons and gave full voting rights to the student and faculty representatives.

By mid-1972, MSU's practical, yet imaginative building program had produced more than $50 million worth of new facilities and won four awards for architectural excellence since 1954.

MSU Recognized In Music

Morehead State University has long been recognized as one of the top music educators in the country. The band program at MSU began with the founding of the school.

Before 1930, Mrs. Emma Shader Sample was the only music teacher on campus. Music lessons were a luxury at the time and most music classes were geared to voice.

In the early 1930's Dr. Marvin George came to Morehead from Bowling Green, Ohio, and began the first marching band.

The early band played at pep rallies and other social functions.

Dr. George earned his doctorate from Columbia University and came to Morehead State to teach band. Soon after his arrival, he offered scholarships to high school students interested and qualified in music. The early bands consisted of the cadet, junior and senior groups.

In the Oct. 2, 1931, issue of "The Trail Blazer" reports are made of the band playing for a pep rally. The band, directed by Dr. George, had 15 members at the time.

Dr. George organized an orchestra to play for commencement exercises in the spring of 1932. The band played for all home football games and presented concerts on the roof garden of Allie Young Hall, the top social spot on campus.

The band program continued through World War II but with the temporary curtailment of football, the band did not march.

In 1946, Jack Thoman took over the directorship of the band. It had grown to more than 60 members. Until the mid-50's, Breck students were allowed to participate in the college band.

Other persons influential in the band program were R. Russel Aukerman, Fred Marzan and the current band director, Dr. Robert Hawkins. Dr. Hawkins, who came to MSU in 1967, has developed the MSU Marching 200 into one of the best college bands in the nation.

The MSU band appeared at halftime of a Cincinnati Bengals football game and the symphony band performed at the Music Educators National Conference in Atlanta earlier this year.

Golden Anniversary Homecoming Schedule

MSU's Golden Anniversary Homecoming has something for everyone this week, including appearances by U. S. Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton (D-Mo.), famed comedian Victor Borge and pop singer Stevie Wonder.

Add to their appearances the popular candlelight dinner, a reception for former Gov. and Mrs. Louie B. Nunn, various receptions and open houses, the tremendous smorgasbord luncheon, the Morehead State-Tennessee Tech football game and the annual dance. Anyone can readily see why this is being labeled the greatest homecoming celebration in MSU history.

Record crowds are expected to return for the three-day festivities set among the magnificently-colored foothills of the Daniel Boone National Forest. Young and old will gather to hear music and entertainment of their choice and governmental figures representing both major parties, magnificently prepared food will abound, MSU's "Big Blue Band from Daniel Boone Land" will perform, the football team of Coach Roy Terry will take on the conference favorite and everything concludes with the traditional dance.

The opening night features Stevie Wonder and his troupe in concert in the Fieldhouse at 8:30 on Thursday. The show is sponsored by the MSU Student Government Association.

Sen. Eagleton will speak at a 2 p.m. convocation in the Fieldhouse on Friday. Gov. Wendell Ford will present the senator. Others in attendance will include Lt. Gov. Julian Carroll, U. S. Rep. Carl Perkins, and other members of the Kentucky congressional delegation, members of the governor's cabinet, State Sen. Walter (Dee) Huddleston and other members of the Kentucky General Assembly.

On Friday evening, the always popular candlelight dinner has been scheduled from 6 p.m. until 8 p.m. in the Adron Doran University Center.

Victor Borge, famed Danish humorist and pianist whose hilarious one-man show ran for over two years on Broadway, will be the featured entertainer at Friday night's 8:15 p.m. concert. Appearing with Borge will be Marylyn Mulvey and Sahan Arzruni.

Saturday's activities get under way with alumni registration beginning at 8 a.m. in front of the Adron Doran University Center. Various receptions and open houses are scheduled from 9 a.m. until noon throughout the campus.

A special reception is scheduled at 10:30 a.m. at Nunn Hall honoring former Gov. and Mrs. Louie B. Nunn. The event is sponsored by the MSU Residence Hall Councils. Participating will be U. S. Sen. and Mrs. John Sherman Cooper, U. S. Sen. Marlow W. Cook, U. S. Rep. Tim Lee Carter and other members of the Congressional delegation and the Kentucky General Assembly also have been invited.

A smorgasbord luncheon honoring the state and national leaders appearing on the campus will be held from 11:30 a.m. until 11:30 p.m. in the ADUC cafeteria.

A pre-game show, featuring the more than 200-piece Morehead State University Marching Band, begins at 2 p.m. in Breathitt Sports Center stadium. The crowning of the homecoming queen will be held at this time.

The traditional homecoming football game is scheduled at 2:30 p.m. with pre-season OVC favorite Tennessee Tech providing the opposition. Morehead State will be shooting for its fifth straight homecoming victory.

A colorful half-time show has been planned to feature the marching band with a show built around the 50-year development of Morehead State University. Incorporated in the show will be vehicles representing the years the institution changed names. Riding in these vehicles will be persons dressed in apparel of the period.

A post-game buffet is scheduled from 5:30 p.m. until 8 p.m. in the ADUC and MSU's award-winning jazz ensembles will provide music for the dances to be held in the health building and the fieldhouse beginning at 9 p.m.

Reunions are scheduled by the classes of 1935, 1945, 1955, and 1965 and special invitations have been directed to all former homecoming queens, previous editors of The Trail Blazer and Raconteur, past presidents of the Student Government Association (formerly Student Council), former cheerleaders and all former athletic letter winners.

"This is truly the YEAR OF THE GOLD," said MSU President Adron Doran, "and we look forward with great anticipation to having our largest crowd in history here this weekend."

ALMOST 300,000 VOLUMES . . . Johnson Camden Library, built in 1931 and more than doubled in size in 1965, houses almost 300,000 volumes. The building was named for a former U.S. Senator from Versailles.

During Wicker's tenure, the school became fully accredited by the Southern Association for Colleges and Schools, the first such honor in Kentucky for a 12-grade school.

James M. Howard succeeded Wicker as director of the laboratory school in June, 1957, and held the position until July, 1960. Mrs. Hazel Whitaker was appointed acting director in 1960 and remained in the position through the 1961-62 academic year.

In 1962 Reedus Back was named the school's fifth full-time director and a new direction of research and implementation in teacher education was begun. The school began to de-emphasize the student teacher laboratory experiences and became a center for pre-student teaching activity in the teacher education program.

Back took a leave of absence in 1968 to pursue advanced graduate work and Rondal D. Hart, a former faculty member and assistant director, returned to assume the administrative duties.

Hart was appointed acting director in 1968 and the following year was named the school's sixth director.

As the 60's came to a close several changes had taken place. In 1966 Morehead State College, having reached new heights as a regional educational institution, attained

AAEC at MSU . . .

Service For 13 States

Morehead State University's Appalachian Adult Education Center was established in 1967 to fight illiteracy in 13 states.

Funded by the U. S. Office of Education, the AAEC has played an active role in helping the millions of persons in Appalachia strive to reach their potential. Some of the roles performed by the university status. No longer would the laboratory school be a "training" school — the new name, "University Breckinridge School" was approved by the MSU Board of Regents.

The fall of 1966 also found another milestone and the doors to a new addition were opened. The facility doubled the size of the existing structure and offered opportunities for expanded program of studies.

The 1968-69 school year saw University Breckinridge again meet all the recommendations of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools and be fully reaccredited.

From a one room school in West Morehead to a million dollar facility in the heart of the Morehead State University campus. From one teacher and a handful of students to an enrollment of 554 with 41 faculty and staff members. From a limited program of studies to a comprehensive offering of educational opportunities.

This is the story of University Breckinridge School.

Adult Education Center are:

*As a successful change agent to influence the development of literacy programs where none exist and to upgrade existing literacy programs in the Appalachian region.

*As a research center, it inquires into the nature of culturally-different people.

*As a demonstration center, it conducts 18 programs in 13 states and is presently developing seven more programs to demonstrate successful techniques for overcoming illiteracy.

*As a training center, it develops professional, paraprofessional and volunteer literacy teachers, recruiters, counselors, teacher-trainers and administrators of literacy programs.

*As a technical assistance center, it provides consultative help to other literacy efforts all over the United States which extend services to more than 23 million functionally illiterate adults.

Since its founding, the center has engaged in directly teaching almost 5,000 adults through its demonstration centers and its own adult learning center on the MSU campus.

AAEC has used various means of communication, including its own newspaper, to promote support and involvement from the public in literacy activities.

The center has developed supplementary reading materials through its Ohio project, video-tape instruction in its Alabama project and the use of a mathematics program for computer-assisted instruction in its Kentucky project.

The center is helping Kentucky Educational Television develop high school preparatory work in reading, mathematics and the content areas to be televised into mountain homes.

The AAEC was recently nominated by UNESCO as the United States' entry for meritorious work in world literacy. When the awards were announced Sept. 8, in Paris, the center received honorable mention.

The center is part of the Bureau of Research and Development. George Eyster is executive director. Dr. Harold Rose, who heads MSU's adult and continuing education program, is AAEC's research administrator.

MSU offers a comprehensive curriculum of adult education courses and a master's degree in adult and continuing education.

Seven graduate students from Thailand are currently enrolled in adult and continuing education classes on the MSU campus. Their visit is being financed by the Aid to International Development program.

Miss Anna . . .

Secretary To 7 Presidents

Morehead State's seven presidents have at least one thing in common. One lady served as secretary for all of them.

Miss Anna Carter, a Morehead native, was selected by Dr. Frank C. Button as the institution's first secretary in 1923. She served all seven presidents before retiring as Dr. Adron Doran's secretary in July, 1960.

"Miss Anna" attended Morehead Normal School as a high school student and taught for three years in Rowan County rural schools but she always wanted to become a secretary.

"My father thought it was unladylike for girls to work in offices," she said. "But I finally told him that I was quitting teaching and he would just have to let me take secretarial training."

Upon graduation from Portsmouth Business College, she returned to Morehead to work in a lawyer's office and at the Clearfield Lumber Company.

"When Brother Frank Button became the school's first president in 1923, he asked me to be his secretary and I just stayed," Miss Carter said.

Her starting salary was $1,400 plus room and board, but "I only stayed in a dormitory for a short time and then commuted from home," she said.

In 1923, the campus consisted of a men's dormitory, a women's dormitory, a classroom building and Burgess Hall, which housed the president's office and residence and several other offices.

At one time she served as secretary to the president, book store manager, post mistress and business agent. For many years, Miss Carter knew every student on campus.

"Students and faculty members often came to me with problems," she remembered. "One day a male professor came to tell me that a girl had fainted in his class. I promptly took a damp towel and revived her."

Most of the first students came to school by train, she said. "Some of the earlier students came by wagon or buggy from the surrounding counties," she recalled.

"Dr. Button never had a car but traveled by train," she said. "He was a very religious man who would always scratch his head when he was pondering a situation."

Dr. Button, a minister who founded Morehead Normal School with his mother, Mrs. Phoebe Button, in 1887, had baptized Miss Carter several years earlier.

Miss Anna Carter

Miss Carter served MSU through the depression and World War II and watched the school grow.

She said she is responsible for decreasing working hours from the original six-day week to a five-and-a-half day week. "I started closing the office at noon instead of 5 p.m. and others followed suit," she said.

Miss Carter served as president of the Kentucky Association of Educational Secretaries in the 1950's and was the association's delegate to two national conventions.

She worked in the University's alumni office for a few years after her retirement as secretary to the president. She continued to serve as secretary to the Board of Regents until 1968.

"Miss Anna" is an active member of the MNS Club, an organization of former Normal School students.

Although retired as an active secretary, she maintains close contact with the University from her home on University Street near the campus.

"I still feel that I belong on campus," Miss Carter said. "It was a great place to work and I enjoyed it."

Four In First Graduating Class

The goals of the Morehead State University Office of Alumni Affairs are to protect, support and generally promote the interests of the University and its alumni.

The Alumni Association strives through its activities to keep an up-to-date relationship with the 13,732 graduates of the University as well as former students who have not been graduated but have associate status.

Of the University's 13,732 graduates, 11,870 have graduated since President Adron Doran was inaugurated in 1954. Dr. Doran has personally awarded degrees to 86 percent of the University's alumni.

Prior to 1954, the Alumni Association was a caretaker organization. It did not possess widespread interest or support and did not have significant programs as compared to current alumni activities. However, there was a limited number of devoted individuals, most of them from Morehead, who kept the organization alive until it could blossom into a thriving association.

The first graduating class of Morehead was in 1927 and there were only four members of the class. During 1928, an Alumni Club was in existence and was the forerunner of an alumni association. Russell Williamson, who was a member of the first graduating class, served as president of the Alumni Club and Alumni Association from 1928 to 1932.

The name of the Morehead State Normal School and Teachers College Alumni Club was changed in 1930 to the Morehead State Teachers College Alumni Association. Hubert Counts of Olive Hill served as president of the Morehead State Teachers College Alumni Association during 1932-33. Best Allen Hurst of Miami, Fla., served as president of the organization in 1934 when the alumni charter and constitution were first written and approved.

Presidents of the Alumni Association from 1935 to 1949 were Dennie Caudill, 1935; Roy Cornette, 1936; Ova Haney, 1937; Malcolm Holliday, Jr., 1938-39; Lester Oxley, 1940; Bob Sanidford, 1941; Ashton Denton, 1942-43; Grace Crosthwaite, 1944; Heman McGrire, 1945; Emery Rogers, 1946; Walter Roushi, 1947; Gordon Moore, 1948; and Ted Crosthwait, 1949.

The institution was known as Morehead State College from 1948 to 1966.

The first salaried executive director of the Alumni Association was named by President Doran on Sept. 8, 1959, with the appointment of Billy Joe Hall who served until June 1, 1963, when Harry Mayhew was named to the post. Mayhew was alumni director until 1972 except for a three-year period from 1967-70 when Rondal Hart served while Mayhew was on sabbatical leave. Don Young was named alumni director this summer.

Presidents of the Alumni Association since 1952 were Collie Cornett, 1952; John Collis, 1953; Beula Williams, 1954; Fola Hayes, 1955-58; Robert Warnock, 1959; Don Holloway, 1960; Lloyd Cassity, 1961; George Jackson, 1962; J. G. Gibson, 1963-65; Lucien Rice, 1966-68; Dr. Ted Crosthwait, 1969-70; and Dr. Larry Hillman, 1971 to the present.

The Association attempts to promote good will between former students and the University and to elicit their support for its programs. Services rendered to active alumni include a placement bureau, informative correspondence and publications.

An ambitious fund-raising project is under way in support of alumni-financed scholarships. Currently, 45 scholarships are awarded annually in the amount of $100 per semester. The grants are financed through voluntary giving by alumni and special projects of the Association. One such project was the 1970 commissioning of a painting of the Morehead State University Bald Eagle by wildlife artist Gene Gray. A limited edition of 2,000 prints is being sold to add a projected $30,000 to the scholarship fund.

The governance of the Alumni Association is determined by a constitution and is separate from the governance of the University. The affairs of the association are guided by a president, president elect, executive secretary-treasurer and an executive council.

Communication between the University and association is provided primarily through the executive secretary-treasurer, who also is director of alumni affairs on the University staff. This officer is responsible to the executive council of the association as well as to the University's president and vice president for university affairs.

The alumni program is a partnership between the University and the alumni and, as a result, is financed both by the University appropriations and voluntary donations by alumni and friends. The current budget is the largest in the history of the association. University appropriations include funds for salaries of staff and facilities for operation. All monies raised from annual giving are used for scholarships and capital construction.

The alumni office stays well informed about the total college program and relates this information to alumni in various ways. A close working relationship is maintained by the director of alumni affairs and staff with the various schools of the University, placement, admissions, school relations and other areas of University affairs.

The alumni director and his staff are closely engaged in public relations activities for the University, including student recruitment and the formation and promotion of regional meetings.

The Morehead State University Alumni Association has joined with the seven other public-supported universities and colleges in Kentucky in an endeavor to better serve the state.

Through the Joint Alumni Council of Kentucky (JACK) an attempt is made to develop a working spirit of cooperation among state-supported institutions of higher learning, to develop techniques for strengthening alumni programs of individual schools and to sell the values of higher education.

JACK is a Kentucky non-profit public service corporation. Through its president, the organization works in behalf of public higher education in the state through the alumni associations of the eight member institutions.

The MSU Alumni Association is also a member of the American Alumni Council and actively participates in the affairs of the organization.

The association, working in cooperation with other University personnel, has a much improved publications program, including a monthly newsletter started in the fall of 1970 and The Alumnus magazine published yearly.

The Alumni Association also is engaged in an active effort to move the organization into the field where alumni reside. As a result, alumni clubs have been established in various regions of Kentucky and in other states where numbers of graduates justify the formation of a club. Regional meetings are held in Eastern Kentucky, Central Kentucky, Northern Kentucky, Louisville, Southern Ohio and Central Florida.

Annual on-campus events sponsored by the Alumni Association include the Homecoming Weekend and the Alumni Awards Banquet held in conjunction with the spring graduation ceremonies.

Three alumni, one a former president of the Alumni Association, currently serve on the MSU Board of Regents and provide an effective input of alumni thinking into the institution's governing board.

THE BEGINNING . . . Registrar Linus Fair led the procession from Button Auditorium following the inaugural program which saw Dr. Adron Doran named the seventh president of Morehead State University in 1954. He is now in his 19th year as president, having served longer than any of his six predecessors. Shown walking with President Doran was then Gov. Lawrence Wetherby.

Eagles Sports Story Colorful 50 Years

The colorful history of intercollegiate sports at Morehead State University spans 45 of the institution's 50 years, encompasses three athletic conferences and involves thousands of contests in 10 varsity sports.

George D. Downing might well be called the father of intercollegiate athletics at MSU. He came to the campus in 1924 as the institution's first athletic director and head coach in all sports. The athletic residence hall today bears his name as the

ALL-AMERICANS . . . John (Buck) Horton, top left, became MSU's first All-American when he was named to the elite football squad in 1938. university's tribute to his early leadership.

Football began with the arrival of Coach Downing but official intercollegiate play in the sport didn't begin until 1927. Baseball was in and out from the beginning and finally was reinstated for good in 1934. Basketball started with the 1929-30 season.

First Joined W. Va. Conference

Other sports and year of adoption include swimming, 1936; track, 1937; tennis, 1938; cross country, 1951; golf, 1960; wrestling, 1963; and soccer, 1966. Of the 10, soccer is the only sport which has never had a losing season and has done so without the benefit of scholarship aid.

The University's affiliation with athletic conferences began in 1928 with the West Virginia Conference. MSU became a conditional member of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association (SIAA) in 1933 and gained full membership in 1935. At the time, the Kentucky Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (KIAC) was a subsidiary of the SIAA. The KIAC became an independent organization in 1938.

Morehead State and four other KIAC members broke away in 1948 to form the Ohio Valley Conference. The OVC began its 25th year of

World War Changed Picture

Basketball has been MSU's main vehicle to national prominence. The Eagle cagers have appeared nine times in two post-season tournaments. They have won eight championships, six in the OVC and two in the KIAC, and produced six All-American players starting with Earl Duncan in 1943. In 43 seasons of varsity basketball, MSU has a cumulative record of 516 wins and 409

Eagles Sports Story

Football put MSU in the national spotlight in the years just prior to and shortly after World War II. The 1950's brought problems and three coaching changes before MSU's grid fortunes began to improve in the decade of the 1960's. In the ensuing 11 years, the Eagles have produced eight winning seasons and two OVC championships. The school's cumulative record for 42 seasons is 146 wins, 180 losses and 17 ties. Two championships also were won in the KIAC. Five Eagle gridgers have won All-America recognition since John (Buck) Horton became the first in 1938.

ALL-AMERICANS . . . Earl Duncan, top left, became MSU's first basketball All-American in 1943. A forward from Georgetown, he ranks among the top 10 Eagle scorers. The most recent of the four MSU cagers who have followed Duncan to All-American recognition is Leonard Coulter, top right, a forward from Danville who was selected last season as a sophomore.

Facilities Far Different

MSU has won other championships in baseball, track, swimming, soccer and cross country. Nearly three dozen individuals have signed professional contracts in football, basketball, baseball and golf with seven former Eagles active in the pro ranks today.

From the first crude playing fields, MSU's athletic facilities have been developed through the years to stand today as the equal of those at any similar institution in the country. Included are a 10,000-seat football stadium with an enclosed eight-lane, quarter-mile Grasstex track, a 5,000-seat fieldhouse for basketball and wrestling, eight all-weather tennis courts, a modern baseball park, a nine-hole golf course, an indoor swimming pool, a lighted soccer field and numerous practice fields.

From the early days when no rules of eligibility were used, MSU long since has become a member in good standing of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) and has compiled a spotless record in strict adherence to the rules and regulations of the NCAA and the OVC.

Lopsided Win

One of the largest victory margins in the history of college football was recorded in 1941 when MSU walloped Rio Grande of Ohio, 104-0.

FIRST BASEBALL TEAM . . . Dr. Warren C. Lappin, right, joined the MSU faculty in 1923 as coach of the school's first baseball team. He retired as vice president for academic affairs and dean of the college in 1971. Some of the original players were high school students.

BEGINNING OF STADIUM . . . Construction of MSU's 10,000-seat football stadium began with the erecting of the grandstand framework in 1964. At the time of its construction, Breathitt Sports Center Stadium was the first new stadium on a Kentucky college campus since the 1930's.

Congratulations . . .

We congratulate Morehead State University on this glorious occasion for the splendid contribution it has made in providing excellence in education. We give special "Thanks" to its distinguished President and First Lady for their wonderful example and dedication.

Mrs. Doran Performs The Call Of Duty

Mrs. Mignon Doran, wife of Morehead State University President Adron Doran, goes far beyond the traditional role of a campus First Lady.

She directs a unique service, the Personal Development Institute, which offers a non-credit course designed to develop individual qualities ranging from manners to vocabulary.

Classes are voluntary and each student receives a handsome certificate upon completion of the five-week course. Additionally, PDI is recorded on the student's permanent transcript for the benefit of prospective employers.

Mrs. Doran founded PDI nearly four years ago after recognizing that public education lacked any emphasis on personal development. The Institute's purpose is to identify and understand the forces that affect the personal potential of students and adults on the MSU campus.

Inner And Outer Beauty

Changing social, economic and political climates are considered in the instruction aimed at improving confidence, poise, personal appearance, health and self-assurance.

"The enhancement of the inner as well as the outer beauty of young people at Morehead State is the major thrust of PDI," said Mrs. Doran. "We are vitally concerned with preparing the total person for rewarding professional life and citizenship."

PDI students explore the various social processes through experiences and instruction. She stresses the importance of personal appearance, diet, wardrobe, manners, grooming and certain other personal protocol.

Mrs. Doran, by her personal example, has been teaching the social graces since coming to MSU in 1954. Among numerous other things, she has supervised festive dinners and parties for students and faculty members. The popular First Lady started teaching the social arts professionally after launching PDI and now operates in two studio classrooms which provide a "living room" environment for PDI.

A former speech and music teacher, Mrs. Doran has spent many years collecting and writing materials which students use in their studies. Her classes involve various visual aids, role-playing, discussion techniques and demonstrations. She is assisted by Mrs. Carolyn Flatt.

The Institute encompasses a broad scope, including on-campus classes and workshops for student teachers, ROTC cadets, community leaders, secretaries, sororities, fraternities, public school teachers and MSU faculty members.

FIRST LADIES . . During her two-year term as president of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs, Morehead State University First Lady Mignon Doran had as her featured speaker at the annual KFWC convention the nation's first lady, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson. The two are shown here in the Phoenix Hotel in Lexington prior to the banquet.

More than 4,000 persons have completed PDI since Mrs. Doran began the pioneering venture in early 1969.

Earlier this year, she was named "Outstanding Woman of the Year" by Cardinal Key national honor sorority.

Mrs. Doran is a member of the board of trustees of Pikeville College.

MSU Grads Provide Many Scholarships

The Morehead State University Alumni Association has for many years provided students with financial help in the form of Alumni scholarships. As a result of this aid, many deserving students have attended and been graduated from this university and are holding responsible positions in many parts of the world.

The significant contribution these scholarships have made in attracting the best students during the past years of Morehead State's history make it fitting that special emphasis be placed on the scholarship fund during our Golden Anniversary Celebration.

The Alumni Association is launching a drive for members in an exclusive organization to be known as the Golden Anniversary Associates. Membership in this organization will be exclusively for Alumni and other friends who believe quality students will be the force that makes the next 50 years even greater.

Along with membership in the Golden Anniversary Associates, special awards and recognition will be given to those who show by their generosity that they are concerned with the future of Morehead State University and of the students it serves.

WE'RE REALLY PROUD . . . Such were the sentiments of the friends of Dr. Adron Doran who assembed in New York City in the spring of 1971 when the popular Kentucky educator received the coveted Horatio Alger Award. Among the other recipients were news commentator Lowell Thomas, famous architect Edward Durell Stone and financier Charles Stewart Mott.

Previously the cafeteria and grill had been located in the basement of Allie Young Hall and the bookstore and post office in the basement of Rader Hall. Shown breaking ground is Steve Hamilton, then Student Council president who went on to major league pitching fame with the New York Yankees and several other teams. Morehead Has Hawk Rifle

In Johnson Camden Library, there hangs a muzzle-loading rifle covered with brass plaques bearing football scores. Until 1963, the old gun traveled between Richmond and Morehead.

It is the traditional "Hawg Rifle," which MSU and Eastern Kentucky football teams fought for on the gridiron from 1936 until 1963.

The Campus Club brought the "Hawg Rifle" on the scene in 1936 after club members voted to establish a prize for the winner of the annual gridiron battle between the Eagles and the ECU Colonels.

Mountain lore of Eastern Kentucky is steeped with stories and traditions involving the use of this type of weapon. The club chose it as being typical of the section from which the two schools primarily draw their student body.

On Friday, Oct. 30, 1936, the battle cry was "Let's use the rifle and bring home the bacon."

Tim Wyant raced 99 yards with an Eastern punt, a school record which still stands as MSU took a 19-7 victory and possession of the rifle.

MSU retained the rifle with a 26-0 win in 1937 and followed with a scoreless tie in 1938. A 7-6 victory in 1939 gave the Eagles four consecutive years of winning the trophy.

Eastern Kentucky won the rifle for the first time in 1940 and kept it in 1941. Morehead State shut out the Colonels 20-0 in 1942 to gain possession of the rifle throughout the war years.

When football competition was resumed in 1946, Morehead State held the rifle with a 12-6 win, but Eastern won the 1947 and 1948 games.

In 1949, the Eagles won the rifle for the last time in an 11-year period.

The Eagles reclaimed the rifle in 1960 with a 21-9 victory but it returned to Richmond the following season. MSU's 20-12 win in 1962 retook the trophy and a 6-0 victory in 1963 kept the rifle in Morehead.

Eastern Kentucky requested in 1963 that the traditional battle for the rifle be discontinued.

The retired rifle remains in the possession of the MSU Campus Club, which became Sigma Alpha Epsilon social fraternity in 1971. The fraternity has loaned it to the library for display during the Golden Anniversary Celebration.

WHAT A FLOAT . . . Homecoming in the 1940's saw this "Hawg Rifle" float designed by the sophomore class. Today the "Hawg Rifle" has been retired following Eastern's withdrawal from participation in the colorful trophy which once was the symbol of football supremacy between the two universities. Morehead State has won the last three football battles between the old rivals and seven of the last 12 games.

MIGNON TOWER . . . A 16-story women's residence hall with room for 292 coeds, Mignon Tower was completed in 1967. It is part of a complex of four residence halls named for MSU's First Lady, Mrs. Mignon Doran.

95 Student Organizations On Campus

Morehead State University today recognizes more than 95 student organizations including 13 honorary societies, seven religious associations, 30 academic bodies and 25 social clubs, consisting of 16 fraternities and nine sororities.

All student organizations are under the supervision of appropriate university authority. Each group must have a constitution, or statement of purpose which is approved by the Student Life Committee and then filed with the vice president for student affairs.

Student groups are governed by the Council of Presidents, an organization composed of the presidents of residence halls and the presidents of recognized student organizations. The Council of Presidents, which was founded by Dr. Adron Doran, is designed to develop a spirit of unity and cooperation in planning and scheduling social and recreational activities.

Social organizations also are under the supervision of the Panhellenic and Interfraternity Councils. The Panhellenic Council is the coordinating body for sororities while the Interfraternity Council ties together the activities of the fraternities.

The first student social organization on the MSU campus was the Campus Club, which was formed in 1933. The fraternity, now known as Sigma

STUDENT CENTER . . . The Doran Student Center on the corner of Battson Street and University Boulevard had this appearance from its opening in 1957 until its renovation in 1969. After it was enlarged and renovated, the name was changed to Adron Doran University Center.

Alpha Epsilon, has had more than 500 members over almost 40 years.

The first national fraternity at MSU was Tau Kappa Epsilon, recognized in 1969.

Delta Gamma became the first national social sorority at MSU in 1962. DG was formed from the local sorority, Alpha Gamma Rho.

Any student wishing to pledge a fraternity or sorority must meet certain rules and regulations set by the University. All "pledges" must have completed 12 semester hours of college work with a 2.0 (C) grade point standing. Pledges are accepted during the fall and spring semesters.

The relationship of the University with fraternities and sororities is a cooperative nature. Working together, the University and the fraternity and sorority system contribute to the development of the individual and to the culture of the campus.

By using a cooperative approach with some University control, fraternities and sororities are encouraged to develop, through the exercise of self government, the objective of good scholarship, chapter respectability and favorable publicity.

FIGHT SONG

(Words & Music by Earl K. Senff)

Dr. Lappin A Legend During His Own Time

Dr. Warren C. Lappin, who retired in July, 1971, as MSU's Vice President for Academic Affairs and dean of the faculty, is a man who became a legend in his own time.

He joined the school in the fall of 1923 as the school's first baseball coach. He planned to stay a year and then become a banker or lawyer.

Dr. Lappin stayed a year and kept staying. When he retired, he had served the institution in capacities ranging from baseball coach to two-time acting president.

During his tenure he served as baseball coach, teacher, director of the training school, dean of the college and vice president for academic affairs and dean of the faculty.

On the surface, Dean Lappin appeared very serious and his disposition earned him a reputation among the students as a sort of "great stone face." According to persons who know him well, this appearance merely hides a personal sense of humor and keen appreciation for the humor and folklore of Appalachia.

Dean Lappin is an educator of the old school who believes today's students are not as serious about learning as those of previous generations.

"An idea has been developed that everyone should graduate from college and this is not necessarily true," he said. "There are still a lot of good students today but the range of education is much broader."

Too many students, he said, are inadequately prepared for college and shouldn't be there in the first place. The best way to overcome this problem, he said, is to provide better counseling at both the high school and college level.

The decline of personal contact between teachers and students has seriously eroded the quality of teaching, he observed.

Although primarily an administrator during his later years at the university, he remained active in teaching. "I never liked to teach the same course too long," he said.

Dean Lappin considers the beginning of a graduate program in 1940 "the one single most important change in the history of education" at MSU.

Dr. Lappin recalls the time spent as director of the training school as the most enjoyable part of his 48 years at MSU.

During his 14 years from 1926 to 1940 as director of the school, he built a solid administrative background which would be beneficial in future years.

He established a student government at Breckinridge before such a group was formed at the college. The custom of students speaking at commencement exercise was started by him.

He calls the World War II years the busiest he spent on campus. In addition to being dean of the college, he coordinated a program for training Navy electricians on campus.

He served as interim president on two occasions.

An ardent sports fan, Dean Lappin served on the athletic committee for more than 40 years.

His service to the university was recognized in 1958 when the Board of Regents named the Science Building "Lappin Hall."

Dean Lappin, who attended or taught school all of his life until his retirement, is "happy not doing much of anything." He works on a small farm near Morehead and has a "good-sized garden."

His daughter, Mrs. Mary Ella Wells, is assistant registrar at MSU and grandsons Jim and Billy are MSU students. Another grandson, Bobby, is a senior at Breckinridge.

Dr. Warren C. Lappin

43 Basketball Teams

Through the 1971-72 season, Morehead State University had produced 43 varsity basketball teams since adopting the sport in 1929-30. The Eagle cagers have won 515 games and lost 407.

National Honors

Mrs. Adron Doran, wife of the president of Morehead State University, was recognized earlier this year as "Outstanding Woman of the Year" by Cardinal Key national honor sorority.

A Love Story

By BUFORD CRAGER
Dean of Students

On a warm Sunday afternoon in early September 1957, a boy of 17 from Spradlin Branch, a suburb of Prestonsburg, Ky., arrived on the campus of Morehead State College and a love affair between a boy and a school began.

During the summer I had received word from Dr. Adron Doran, President of Morehead State College, that he knew I had been graduated fifth in my high school class, had received the Reatherford-Salyers Award as the outstanding senior athlete at Prestonsburg High, would be playing in the East-West All-Star football game, had received a knee injury in football during my senior year, wanted to attend Morehead to play football and baseball, and would need a scholarship to attend college.

Dr. Doran assured me that if I came to Morehead I would get a college education even if my knee injury should recur. So here I was ready to start my college career mainly because Dr. Doran, a man who I had yet to meet, had made possible the desire of a boy to attend college. I wanted to justify his faith in me and maybe in some way the days ahead would permit me to do so.

Walked Around Beautiful Campus

I ate my evening meal in the Doran Student House which had just opened for the first time and then returned to Thompson Hall, which housed males at that time, to meet my three roommates.

Later that evening I walked over the campus viewing the other buildings on campus: the other three dorms — Fields Hall, Allie Young Hall, Men's Hall; and the classroom buildings — the Science Building and the Administration building.

On the west end of the campus was the swimming pool, Button Auditorium and the Button gym which until the preceding year had served as the home of the basketball Eagles. On the East end of the campus was Vet's Village and Riceville where the married couples lived and Jayne Stadium where the football team strived for a first down and the Laughlin gymnasium where the basketball team was winning OVC championships.

After two weeks of football practice, the students, faculty, and the remainder of the staff arrived on campus. This meant school was about to start and we had to go through three days of freshman orientation.

A white-haired man with a high waist band and a warm smile on his face welcomed the largest freshman class in the history of the college. We later learned that his name was Dean Roger Wilson and that he was the dean of students. Dean Wilson then introduced the president of the college, Dr. Doran. Dr. Doran greeted us and said that he hoped to personally know each of us in a month or so and, to my surprise, he later would call us by name as he met us on campus.

The thing I remember about the orientation period was the friendly way each person tried to help you through a trying time. We learned the

The faculty and staff encouraged us to attend the football season and the basketball season began.

TED KENNEDY HERE . . . Homecoming '66 style found young Ted Kennedy as the featured speaker and the member of the famous Kennedy family attracted a full house in the Fieldhouse. Sen. Kennedy was several hours late in arriving due to bad flying conditions but the more than 5,000 people in attendance waited patiently. The Massachusetts senator is shown here with President and Mrs. Doran at a reception following the convocation.

ARTHUR GOLDBERG SPEAKS . . . Former Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg spoke on the campus of Morehead State University last spring and was a big hit with the several hundred high school students who came from throughout the state for a leadership conference. fight song, the alma mater, and the favorite Eagle cheers. This part of orientation had a lasting impression on me and I regret today that the students do not have this experience.

Dr. Lappin Approved Schedules

When the time came for me to sign up for classes, I had been forewarned that the roughest part of registration was convincing a fellow named Dean Warren Lappin who was the academic dean of the college to approve my schedule. I walked up to his table, held my breath and tried to smile. I could not smile and he would not smile but he did approve my schedule and I sighed with relief. I would later meet most of the faculty and staff and be able to call each by name, but the three men I remember most were Dr. Doran, Dean Wilson, and Dean Lappin. The three men along with many other people in the College influenced me greatly and continue today to enrich my life.

In a few days we would take our blue and gold uniforms from the nail (or nails, depending on how you rated) which served as our locker, ask our two football coaches, the head coach, Paul Adams, his assistant, Jerry Wing, to wrap our ankles with the tape available and run on the football field to continue the longest losing streak in the history of the school. Student volunteers mainly made up the college band. As the grade school boys hung each score of the visiting team on the tin and wooden scoreboard at the southeast corner of the field, the afternoon finally ended on a losing note but there had been a ray of hope that day and better days would follow. "Honie" Rice, superintendent of buildings and grounds, a great man in his quiet way, later would install an electric scoreboard.

Football season ended but not the classes and basketball season began.

The basketball team was good and was headed by a successful coach by the name of Bobby Laughlin who to this day is still "Coach" Laughlin to everyone. The faculty gave us a Christmas break and wished us well as they reminded us that final exams would begin when we returned to campus.

Allen Encouraged Team

The second semester began and a few of our friends did not return to MSC. Registration was much easier as we knew most of the short cuts by then and supposedly who were the good teachers. As soon as the snow cleared, spring football practice began — what an experience! The baseball team used part of the football practice field for their practice field as well as their game field. Coach Sonny Allen welcomed the baseball tryouts and encouraged us to make the best of every opportunity.

As we practiced baseball, I could see the guys trying out for track running around the football field. The track consisted of six chalk lanes of grass marked on the outer edge of the football field. Dr. Nolan Fowler, a knowledgeable man of track and field, served as the coach. One of his most difficult tasks was keeping the trackmen from running into the light poles which were located in two lanes of the grass track. The poles held lights for the football field. Our grass track was not known to be very fast, but it could be slippery when wet.

Spring arrived in full bloom and the students had spring fever. Final exams were ahead and the boy from Spradlin Branch had experienced many things in a short span of nine months. I made many friends that year. This was and still is today the spirit of Morehead State. One young lady (Jenny Ball) I met that year would later become my wife.

Involved More As Sophomore

The faculty and staff encouraged us to be ladies and gentlemen and they were sincere in what they taught us. Much of their teaching was not taken from the textbook but from everyday life.

During my sophomore year I got involved in many school activities such as joining the Campus Club which was the only fraternity on campus. Many days came and went as I finished my undergraduate days, having taken a wife following my junior year. Following graduation, Dr. Doran gave me a graduate assistantship in football and I completed my master's degree in the summer of 1962.

I then had to leave my second home of five years, what a sad time for my wife and me. The day we left the campus we set our goal to return some day as a member of the faculty or staff. Often we returned to our alma mater with each visit strengthening our desire to return to the place we loved.

Five years after leaving, we returned to Morehead State University to make this our home again. Many changes had taken place and more would follow but Dr. Doran, Dean Wilson and Dean Lappin were still the great leaders they had been when I arrived on the campus 10 years earlier as a freshman.

Friends Are The Best

I am now into my sixth year as dean of students and at times I reflect on the past 16 years of my involvement with Morehead State University. I think of the many friends I have made, the good times I have experienced and the many, many people who have given me a helping hand and a word of encouragement when I really needed a lift. I could never forget Mrs. Doran, the first lady of MSU, and the many ways she has helped to make me a better person. Later, she would continue to enlarge on her role as the other half of a great team and start the Personal Development Institute which is enriching the lives of many students today.

I can still hear Dr. Gabriel Banks giving the invocation during weekly chapel. He performed our marriage ceremony. Recently, I saw Dr. Exelbirt and remembered his class in history of Western Civilization. I don't remember many facts from his class but I recall him and the way he scolded us for committing the sins of omission and commission on our test papers. Then there was Monroe Wicker who took a special interest in all students, especially those students from Eastern Kentucky. He counseled and advised us and impressed on us how important it was to graduate. Space will not permit but there are many more people who helped me along the way.

As other graduates return for Homecoming, I hope they will notice the many changes that have taken place at Morehead State. The one thing that is most important of all has not changed and that is the philosophy of this university — service to the individual. Computers and IBM cards have arrived on the scene but every student still is regarded as an individual and every attempt is made to help prepare him for his chosen profession with the hope that he, in turn, will make a contribution to his fellow man. This University is great today because this same philosophy has endured through all the changes of the past years. This is why I respect Morehead State University more today than I did yesterday and why I will respect it even more tomorrow.

Tomorrow will bring new students and I hope two of them will be my sons who will continue my love affair with Morehead State University.

SERVED ALL SEVEN . . . Miss Anna Carter, retired secretary to all seven MSU presidents, and Lucien Rice, a Boy Scout executive now based in New Jersey, have been recipients of MSU's Outstanding Alumnus Award. Miss Carter was picked in 1966 and Rice in 1970.

Information On . . . University Services

By HARRY MAYHEW
Director, University Services

Morehead State University's Division of University Services in the Bureau of University Affairs, provides a host of services to various individuals, groups and institutions. Our work includes extension and correspondence study, in-service education, conferences and meetings, speaker's bureau, placement, school relations and information services.

EXTENSION AND CORRESPONDENCE

Last year more than 1,000 students enrolled in correspondence study and another 2,000 registered in an off-campus class. Six regional extension centers within commuting distance of every prospective student in the Morehead State University region have been established at Mt. Sterling, Maysville, Ashland, Prestonsburg, Pikesville, and Jackson. Numerous courses are offered each term at these locations.

In addition to the extension centers, courses are offered at numerous other locations in the state on a request basis. Extension courses recently were offered at Carlisle, Cynthia, Greenup, Louisville, Whitesburg, Campton, Paintsville, West Liberty, Williamstown, Vanceburg, Owingsville, Sandy Hook, Frankfort, and Lexington.

Courses are also offered each year through the facilities of commercial television stations. This year courses were offered by stations in Louisville, Cincinnati and Huntington, W. Va., which enabled the programs to reach practically all of Kentucky.

The off-campus study program reflects the University's philosophy that the institution should meet the needs of the people of the Commonwealth where they reside. This concept, combined with on-campus study, offers the ultimate in educational opportunity to Kentuckians enrolled at Morehead State University.

The comprehensive program now underway is in sharp contrast to the off-campus offerings at the University in the past. As early as the spring of 1953, only one extension class was offered and it had only five students enrolled. In the fall of 1954 when Dr. Adron Doran was inaugurated as president, there were seven classes offered off campus with an enrollment of 156. The number of students enrolled off campus and the variety of offerings have steadily increased through the years.

IN-SERVICE EDUCATION

The extension and correspondence study programs are important parts of the in-service program of our division. However, there are numerous other ways in which we help our clientele keep up to date in each field. One of the functions is to assist in making MSU personnel available to schools and other groups as consultants. A large number of Morehead State University faculty and staff members are making their expertise available to teachers, school systems and business and industry.

Currently, faculty visitation teams are being scheduled in cooperation with School Relations to visit school systems in the region for work with students and teachers in various subject areas. The teams demonstrate the most recent methods and materials in their areas and relate the current status of careers in their respective fields.

CONFERENCES AND MEETINGS

All conferences and meetings involving off-campus groups are coordinated and scheduled by our division. The meetings and conferences vary in length from a few hours to a week or more. Recent examples include Kentucky Methodist Conference, Kentucky Girls State, Upward Bound, MSU Yearbook Workshop, Cheerleader Camp and many more.

Thousands of persons use the facilities of the University each year at conferences and meetings. Many of the activities are held in the ultramodern Adron Doran University Center which is equipped to handle nearly any type of group and any type of meeting.

SPEAKER'S BUREAU

The Division of University Services operates the MSU Speaker's Bureau with more than 100 speakers registered from the University community. Elsewhere in this publication is a listing of Speaker's Bureau topics. All organizations are encouraged to take advantage of the services of the MSU Speaker's Bureau.

PLACEMENT

Placement is an integral part of our division. The Placement Center is housed in newly-renovated offices at Allie Young Hall. The executive secretary of placement is well qualified and efficiently serves the needs of school personnel and business and industry.

The Placement Center contains six modern interview rooms which are heavily used throughout the year. Large numbers of hiring officials come to the campus to talk to prospective employees. Many students find their first jobs through the Placement Center.

SCHOOL RELATIONS

The division works closely with the director of School Relations. We help coordinate many aspects of the high school visitation program. School systems within the region of Morehead State University are visited annually and information relative to college life is related to high school juniors and seniors. A close working relationship is maintained between the University and school guidance counselors, principals and superintendents in order to provide the best service possible.

INFORMATION SERVICES

Inquiries for information concerning MSU are sent to University Services which responds by mailing various publications, including the undergraduate and graduate catalogs, campus maps, special brochures on academic offerings and all forms necessary for enrollment. In addition, the office arranges special campus tours for prospective students and other interested persons.

Lots Of Room

Laughlin Health Building, opened at MSU in 1967, has room for four basketball games to be played simultaneously with each on a regulation-size court.

Raconteur Started In 1928

"The Raconteur" has been the official name of the MSU yearbook since its inception in 1927.

The Raconteur has evolved from the 1927 issue, a standard size book in soft cover, to the modern portfolio book of today. MSU became one of the first universities in the country to use the portfolio in 1971. The book is divided into five sections with each placed individually in a binder.

Following the first issue, all Raconteurs were hard cover. There was no publication from 1942 to 1947 due to paper shortages caused by World War II.

Natural four-color was used for the first time in 1960 when the publication format changed to the collegiate size, 9 inches by 12 inches. Previously, all but two had been 8 inches by 11 inches.

The popular magazine format made its introduction in 1966. The book, divided into interest areas, gave the appearance of magazines with the covers of popular magazines used as divider pages. This format was again used in 1970.

The Raconteur has received many national awards through the years and is recognized as one of the top publications of its kind in the country.

Graduate and undergraduate students have served as editor. Elizabeth E. Hubbard was the first editor of the Raconteur in 1927.

Victory Mark

Four MSU football teams have won seven games in a single season. Tied for the most wins are the squads of 1928, 1937, 1966 and 1971. The 1954 and 1955 teams tied for the most losses with nine each.

STUFFING THE LIBRARY . . . During the craze for stuffing telephone booths in the early 1960's, MSU students went one better and stuffed Johnson Camden Library.

Morehead Offers Degrees At The Graduate Level

Twenty different degrees have been offered by Morehead State University during its 50 years of educational service.

Of these, eight have been at the graduate level, seven at the baccalaureate level and five at the associate level.

The first graduates, in 1927, received the Bachelor of Arts in Education (A. B. Ed.) degree--the only one available in those early days. Three years later, the institution granted the first of the Bachelor of Science in Education (B. S. Ed.) degrees. When the word "Teachers" was dropped from the name of the school in 1948, these two degrees, the staples of the institution during a quarter of a century, were discontinued. They had been supplemented a dozen years earlier with two other degrees--Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science.

A scant two decades after it began enrolling students, Morehead State Teachers College conferred its first degree at the graduate level. This degree--the Master of Arts in Education (A. M. Ed.)--was first awarded in 1942.

This array of degrees served well the purposes of the college. When, however, the school achieved university status in 1966, additional educational goals required the development of new degree programs.

The first of the associate degrees, which could be earned through two years of study, was awarded in that year and a second one was approved. These two degrees--Associate of Applied Science and Associate of Science--were followed closely, in 1967, by a new degree at the graduate level, the Master of Arts.

Enhancement of the academic stature of the newly-designated university was vividly demonstrated in 1968 with the granting for the first time of six new degrees.

Three of these were the first new degrees offered at the baccalaureate level in more than three decades. They were the Bachelor of Business Administration, Bachelor of Music and Bachelor of Music Education.

The other three new degrees awarded for the first time in 1968 reflected the expanding graduate education program demanded of the new university. Conferred initially in that year were the Master of Higher Education, Master of Music and Master of Science.

Two more graduate degrees--Master of Business Education and Master of Music Education--were awarded for the first time in 1969.

The next year saw a third two-year degree--Associate of Applied Arts--added to the offerings of the University.

In 1971, the first Associate of Arts degree was awarded, and the first Master of Arts in Adult and Continuing Education.

The Associate of Applied Business degree was granted for the first time in 1972.

Oldest Record

MSU's oldest, unbroken individual football record is the 99-yard punt return by Tim Wyant against Eastern Kentucky in 1936.

HORATIO ALGER WINNER . . . In the spring of 1971, great honor was brought to Morehead State University and to Kentucky when, for only the fourth time in history, a native Kentuckian was named a recipient of the Horatio Alger Award. MSU President Adron Doran was one of 10 men to receive the award and is shown here making his acceptance speech at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City.

OVC Return Record

Buford Crager, dean of students at Morehead State University, holds the OVC record for longest kickoff return with a 100-yard scoring jaunt against East Tennessee in 1959.

Together Again

MSU assistant football coaches Dan Walker and Tom Lichtenberg were teammates and roommates at the University of Louisville before both were graduated in 1962.

Anniversary Festivities Planned Last January

Morehead State University's Golden Anniversary Celebration began quietly in late January when President Adron Doran announced that the 50th anniversary of the school's founding would be marked with "an appropriate observance."

Dr. Ray Hornback, vice president for university affairs, was appointed chairman of a 14-member executive committee to plan and conduct the year-long festivities.

"Morehead State University has a rich heritage of service to the people of Kentucky and we feel our 50-year anniversary is a fitting and proper time to commemorate these contributions," said Dr. Doran.

"The celebration will take many forms and we hope to involve all elements of the University community, local citizens and other persons of state and national prominence," he added.

Student members of the executive committee are Morehead junior Mike Mayhew, former president of the MSU Student Government Association, and Greenup senior Ann Leslie, president of the MSU Panhellenic Council. Added this summer was Pete Marcum, Louisville junior and the current SGA president.

Faculty members on the executive committee are Dr. M. E. Pryor, professor of biology; Dr. Norman Roberts, head of the Department of Industrial Education; Dr. John Kleber, associate professor of history; Don Young, assistant professor of art and director of alumni affairs; Dorothy Conley, assistant professor of education; and Clyde James, instructor of business.

Administrative staff representatives are Dr. Hornback; Dr. Paul Ford Davis, vice president for academic affairs; Russell McClure, vice president for fiscal affairs; Dr. Gene Scholes, assistant to the president; Dr. Harry Mayhew, director of university services; and Buford Crager, dean of students.

Chairmen of general committees include:

McClure, finance; Mike Mayhew and Ann Leslie, students; Harry Mayhew, speakers bureau; Emmett Rogers, publications; Dr. Morris Norfleet, conferences; Young, exhibits and alumni;

Dr. Glenn Fulbright, fine arts and entertainment; Dr. Davis, professorships and artists-in-residence; Dr. Morris Caudill and Dr. John Duncan, symposia; Dr. Roberts, design; Keith Kappes, publicity; and John Collis, special items.

Detailed planning began quickly and the celebration got its official opening less than six weeks later when President Doran traveled to Frankfort to accept a joint resolution from the Kentucky General Assembly.

The resolution marked the 50th anniversary of the founding of Morehead State and Murray State in 1922. Gov. Wendell Ford gave Dr. Doran the House copy of the resolution in honor of the president's former service as a House member and as Speaker of the House.

Dr. Doran, in turn, presented the Governor with a print of the MSU Bald Eagle, the University's official symbol.

The president rushed back to campus for a gigantic outdoor birthday party where he read the resolution to a cheering throng of more than 2,000 persons and then used a military sword to cut a 12-foot-high birthday cake. Free refreshments were served to most of those who jammed the intersection in front of the Adron Doran University Center.

The celebration took on an academic flavor a few weeks later with the campus appearances of Dr. Huston Smith, Golden Anniversary visiting professor of philosophy, and Arthur J. Goldberg, former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

In connection with the Goldberg visit, the Golden Anniversary Committee sponsored a high school leadership conference and more than 200 students from 40 schools heard four MSU professors give some good news and some bad news.

The afternoon investigation of "Our World Tomorrow" featured two biologists foretelling doom unless environmental pollution and overpopulation are brought under control, and two political scientists expressing optimism for U.S. relations with Russia and Red China and for the fate of America's cities.

The weighty problems of the world were forgotten one Saturday night when young and old alike gathered on campus for the Golden Anniversary Ball.

Dance and costume contests, old and new music and a narrative history of MSU produced a flashback through the 50 years since 1922.

The university's award-winning Jazz Ensemble drew a strong ovation for its masterful handling of music popular before most of the student musicians were born.

Other events in the spring included a concert by famed pianist Peter Nero, an alumni meeting at Jenny Wiley State Park which attracted more than 200 alumni, a superb career education conference on campus, and the Golden Anniversary Alumni Awards banquet which was attended by more than 800 persons and saw the following people honored:

Distinguished Faculty Award — Julia D. Webb

Outstanding Alumnus Award — Custer B. Reynolds

University Special Service Award — Mrs. Adron Doran

Public Service Award — B. F. Reed

Governmental Service Award — Otto Ingram

Another facet of the celebration — a colorful "Eagle-Mobile" made its debut this summer at several fairs and festivals around the state as MSU continued to mark its "Half Century of Service" to Kentucky and the nation.

A gold-colored station wagon with a roof-mounted Eagle with a 15-foot wingspread, the "Eagle-Mobile" provides its own march music, interspersed with the MSU Fight Song.

The vehicle is scheduled at several more outdoor programs this year and will be a featured attraction at the Golden Anniversary Homecoming, Oct. 20 and 21.

Reaching Out

WMKY, the 50,000-watt FM radio station owned and operated by Morehead State University, has a coverage area of nearly 100 miles in every direction. The station broadcasts 18 hours a day at 90.3 on the dial. It is the flagship station for the MSU Sports Network.

CELEBRATIONS BEGIN . . . Gov. Wendell H. Ford (center) hands copies of legislative resolutions to the presidents of Morehead State and Murray State universities during a ceremony at the State Capitol in Frankfort. The legislature honored both universities on the 50th anniversary of the passage of a bill which led to their creation in 1922. From left are Lloyd Cassity of Ashland, a member of the Morehead State Board of Regents; Lt. Gov. Julian Carroll; Murray President Harry Sparks; Gov. Ford; Morehead State President Adron Doran, State Sen. Joe Stacy of West Liberty and State Rep. Woody May of Woodsbend, Morgan County.

Outstanding Fall Events On Schedule

The fall semester is witnessing a continuation of the outstanding events held during the spring semester of the Golden Anniversary celebration. The first event of the fall Golden Anniversary calendar was the Religious Emphasis Week planned and conducted by the MSU Campus Ministry during mid-September. Grady Nutt, noted humorist, appeared at a convocation and each of the religious centers on campus conducted events of their own.

Sept. 28 found governmental and civic leaders on the campus for a "Government and Rural Development Conference." Former Gov. Edward T. Breathitt, now a Hopkinsville attorney, was the featured speaker.

"High School Guest Day" on Sept. 30 brought high school students from throughout the region to spend the day on the campus and attend the Morehead State-Murray State football game.

A conference on "Environmental Problems in Rural Development" was conducted earlier this month.

"Sciences in the 70's — A career opportunities day for selected high school students" was staged Oct. 11 and featured an address by Dr. Madison Pryor, professor of biology in the MSU School of Sciences and Mathematics.

This week is the super Golden Anniversary Homecoming Weekend which is discussed elsewhere in this publication. Principal events include Stevie Wonder Concert, Oct. 19; U.S. Sen. Thomas Eagleton Convocation, Candlelight Dinner and Victor Borge concert, all on Oct. 20; and reception for Governor and Mrs. Louie B. Nunn, other receptions and open houses, smorgasbord luncheon, MSU-Tenn. Tech. football game and dance, all on Oct. 21.

Next Thursday (Oct. 26) will find the Oxford University debaters on campus to appear in a general session open to the public. These widely renowned youngsters from Great Britain will also participate in the annual meeting of the Kentucky Association of Communication Arts which is being held at MSU Oct. 26 and 27. Teachers and students in the communication arts from throughout Kentucky will attend.

The dates of Nov. 1 and 2 have been set for the Golden Anniversary Personal Enrichment Program (PEP) directed by Mrs. Adron Doran. Youngsters from throughout the region will spend two days on the campus participating in a concentrated period of personal enrichment. The event will conclude with a banquet in the Adron Doran University Center.

Another highlight of the Golden Anniversary celebration will be the two-week appearance of popular television and movie actress Ann B. Davis as MSU's Golden Anniversary Actress in Residence. Miss Davis, who starred in the "Bob Cummings Show" as "Schultze" and now appears in the "Brady Bunch," will play the lead in Thornton Wilder's "The Matchmaker." The performance will be seen on November 2, 3 and 4. MSU faculty and students will play supporting roles.

Miss Davis will participate in various theater classes and will be featured in a high school theater workshop with the date to be announced.

The Kentucky Academy of Science will hold its annual statewide meeting on campus Nov. 3 and 4. A Friday evening banquet will feature a speaker of national renown.

The final rural America conference will be held on Nov. 9 when education leaders from throughout the state will be on campus for a conference entitled "Education in Rural America." The keynote speaker will be Gene Hoyt of the Appalachian Regional Commission. Others on the program include Dr. Lyman Ginger, state superintendent of public instruction; U.S. Rep. Carl Perkins; and Dr. Maurice Seay of Western Michigan University.

The widely acclaimed Preservation Hall Jazz group will appear in concert on Nov. 10, the same weekend selected high school seniors will be invited to spend the weekend in a series of specially designed events for high school students.

The year of celebration will conclude with a banquet on Nov. 17 with the city fathers and citizens of Morehead saluting the University for the great contributions the institution has made during the past 50 years. A parade and other features of the downtown salute to MSU are in the planning stages.

Monroe Wicker Views The Past

By MONROE WICKER
Retired Administrator

"Through these halls of inanimate concrete, steel and mortar, pass the never ending forces that build the future of man, for through the influence of our learning, we are the builders of destiny."

These words were quoted when Morehead State was celebrating its 25th birthday, in 1947. The speaker must have been one of the world's greatest optimists because the college was both discredited and discredited at the time.

Political practices in the hiring of presidents resulted in the school's discreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. These unethical practices, which were common to every state college in Kentucky, disgraced Morehead and this institution was made the goat.

Prophets of doom predicted the closing of its doors as an educational institution. Many were glad and said that it should be taken over by the state and used for some other purpose. It was rumored that it was going to be turned into an insane asylum.

The Board of Regents realized what was happening to the college and, in 1946, employed a new President and entrusted him with the authority to clean up the mess and get on with the business of building an institution.

Unfortunately, the new leader could not stem the tide of events — the officials of the accrediting agency had their minds made up — the college lost its accreditation during his first year. The faint-hearted would have resigned in despair, but not Dr. William Jesse Baird.

Everyone knows the rest of the story. Dr. Baird was successful. We worked literally both day and night until the college was reaccredited retroactively. The dean of the college, in addressing the faculty and others, stated that he was amazed at the number of Dr. Baird's friends. Through hard work and the help of these friends, the college was restored to its rightful place among the institutions of the state.

One of the provisions for reaccrediting Morehead State was that the General Assembly enact a law that no member of a Board of Regents could be removed without cause during a four-year term. The state legislature enacted this provision upon the recommendation of the governor. This law did more to free the educational institutions of the state from politics than any measure, past or present.

One may say what happened was a fortune in disguise in the long run not only for Morehead but for all the state colleges and universities.

Morehead State probably would have had to close its doors while trying to regain accreditation except for two things. First, the Kentucky Department of Education continued to accept credit from Morehead toward teacher certification. Secondly, other colleges and universities continued to accept graduates and transfer students from Morehead.

I came to the campus in June of 1947 in the year of the "Silver Jubilee," as director of public relations and director of admissions. I came in time to see and to participate in the struggles which took place in rescuing an institution from the violent throes of death and in placing it upon a firmer foundation, one upon which wise leaders and devoted teachers could build a great college and eventually a great university to serve the people of the region and the state.

Before retiring on June 30, 1971, I saw many wonderful things happen to the institution in the preceding 24 years.

The institution did not reach these peaks by waving magic wands. It reached them through great leadership, wise planning, and hard work.

At first the enrollment increase was slow due to the fact that most parents had gotten into the habit of sending their children elsewhere and also because of the stigma attached to the institution. When parents were once more convinced that Morehead was a sound college, they began to send them to campus in ever-increasing numbers.

It was my pleasure and privilege to have served the University under three presidents and an acting president. Dr. Warren C. Lappin served as acting president after Dr. Baird's death until the employment of Dr. Charles Spain and again after the resignation of Dr. Spain to the employment of Dr. Adron Doran. He served well during these interim periods and kept the institution on an even keel.

Dr. Adron Doran has served Morehead State University as president since 1954. The Golden Anniversary could not have come at a more appropriate time than while this man is still president. His tenure here may well be labeled the "Golden Age" of the institution. The greatest growth, development and changes have occurred since Dr. Doran took office.

His all-consuming interest has centered on Morehead. All talents he possessed have been used to the advantage of this institution. He has been adaptable to new situations and has demonstrated keen intellectual qualities in interpreting current social, political, and technological events and their implications to education.

He has great ability as a speaker and has given of himself and expected others to do likewise. He has been most fortunate to have had a great and lovely lady as his helpmate.

Dr. Doran had a dream. He had the vision to fashion that dream into a great University.

His footprints have been carved deep and indelibly on the history of Morehead State University and will endure down through the corridors of time.

Earl King Senff Wrote Fight Song

The strains of "Fight, Fight, Fight for Morehead" have been part of Morehead State University athletics for 36 years and it's all because of Dr. Earl K. Senff, now a Frankfort investment counselor.

Dr. Senff, a division manager for The Channing Co., was a history professor at MSU back in 1936 when the football coach asked him to write a fight song for the upcoming game with Eastern Kentucky.

It was the first annual "Hawg Rifle" game and Senff, who was leading a band called the King's Jesters, sat down one night and wrote the words and music.

A saxophonist and pianist, the Mount Sterling native led his group in the first public performance of the song at a student assembly. The students loved it and sang loudly that weekend as the Eagles rolled to a 19-7 victory.

"I enjoyed writing it and I'm pleased that the song has become such a strong tradition," Senff said recently. The former MSU tennis and swimming coach received no compensation for the song and gave all rights to the school.

Senff, who taught at Morehead State from 1933 to 1942, later became head of the social sciences department at Livingston State College in Alabama. He gave up teaching in 1956 to enter the

Earl K. Senff
... authored MSU fight song investment field.

"My years on campus in Morehead were every enjoyable," Senff recalled. "My wife and I have many fond memories"

Mrs. Senff, the former Marianna Thomas of Paintsville, is a 1936 graduate of MSU. The Senffs have a son, Tom, a doctoral candidate in music at the University of Illinois.

The author of "Fight, Fight, Fight for Morehead" holds a Ph. D. in history and political science and is a retired colonel in the Marine Corps Reserve.

He is a nephew of the late Earl W. Senff, a former member of the MSU Board of Regents and the person for whom the university's natatorium was named.

Memories Of Henry Haggan

By HENRY HAGGAN
Retired Agriculture Professor

Robert Kennedy once said, "Great changes dominate the world today, and unless we move with the change we will become its victim."

Thanks to the foresight and able leadership of Dr. Adron Doran, Morehead State University has moved with the change and can celebrate its Golden Anniversary in triumph.

When the school opened in 1923, there were only four buildings available for students and faculty: Burgess Hall, Hargis Hall, Hodson Hall, and Withers Hall.

Burgess Hall was a multi-purpose building which served as a president's home, bookstore, library, and an auditorium. Our first president and wife, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Button, had two rooms and bath. Their bedroom was private but their sitting room was also used for a bookstore.

Hargis Hall contained six large lecture rooms.

Hodson Hall, the girls' dorm, was a three-story frame building with one bathroom. As the enrollment increased, it became necessary to post a schedule for each girl to bathe. A small outhouse near the rear of the dorm was available for overcrowding.

Withers Hall was a two-story building with two baths but one bath was for the boys. I don't know whether there were fewer boys or whether boys tend to bathe less frequently than girls but it never became necessary to post a bath schedule there.

When my wife and I came to this campus I was asked to be in charge of Withers Hall, the boys' dorm. Four rooms and bath had been set aside for us. This was a fortunate arrangement because Withers Hall had electricity and heat. Available rental property in town did not.

We soon learned there was electricity only seven hours per day. A whistle blew at 4 p.m. each afternoon for the lights to be turned on and lights went off soon after the train passed through town around 11 p.m.

Passengers getting off the train hurried to reach the hotel, the campus, or their homes in town while the lights were still on. One day per week my wife could use her electric iron or sweeper a little earlier because the electricity came on at 1:00 p.m. Sometimes the current went off unexpectedly. Hence, it was necessary to issue one or two kerosene lamps for each dormitory room.

There were only three telephones, a far cry from the 1,450 of today. MSU now has the most modern telephone system on any campus in Kentucky. It has a potential 1,600 lines and all wires are underground.

In those early days, all students were required to be in their rooms by 7:30 p.m. Rooms were inspected each morning.

Chapel was held five days a week and attendance was required. President Button, Dean Lewis, and the small faculty took turns presenting the program. Students were requested to assemble in front of Burgess Hall and march into the chapel in two lines. Since I had served in World War I, with considerable marching experience, it fell my lot to be in charge of the chapel lineup. How little we dreamed that one day our numbers would swell to nearly 6,500 students and almost 400 faculty.

Few schools had gymnasiums in those days. We were not one of the lucky few so our students played outdoors. I coached a team in basketball, the most popular sport. Most teams were from high schools lacking gyms. Very little money was appropriated for athletic scholarships and one season Coach George Downing found himself coaching a team of only 11 men for football. Fortunately, there were no injuries that year.

Medical facilities were quite limited in the beginning. One room in Withers Hall and one room in Hodson Hall were set aside for students who became ill. There was no nurse.

On one occasion a well-meaning townswoman begged kindly for the privilege of nursing an ill student back to health. "I know just what to do for him," she assured me, "because my husband died of the very same thing!"

The school water supply was a well behind Withers Hall. Roscoe Isham of Vanceburg operated a pump and water was pumped to three horse troughs in the attic of Burgess Hall. These troughs supplied water to all buildings on campus.

Transportation to school was a problem for some of our early students. Some who did not have cars or were too far from the railroad came by horseback. A student and his father would each ride horseback to the campus. Then the father rode home, leading his child's horse.

Our school has always endeavored to promote activities leading to the improvement of the social and economic life of the area it serves. I found a special challenge during my 41-year span in agriculture here because there was such a need for my services on farms throughout the country. My students often accompanied me there for practical experience. In this way they could learn horticulture firsthand, inoculate and shear sheep and learn to cull chickens.

In town they did soil testing and pruned shrubs for various property owners. They also helped me landscape nearby schools and churches.

Living in a home adjacent to the campus gives me a wide view of student traffic each day as a constant reminder of another change which has taken place. Driving into Morehead on the four-lane connector to Interstate 64, today's students little guess the deplorable condition of roads in the early days of this school. Many were impassable during the winter months. The only paved road in Rowan County extended from Brady Curve at the west end of town to the Licking River. Students coming from other counties had to cross a toll bridge, paying 25 cents. The bridge owner gave free toll to those who had a pass from Dean Lewis.

We were a compact little group when I first came to this school. Can you picture a faculty small enough to be seated at one table for the noon meal on school days? The student body was small enough to have their dances on the rear patio of Allie Young Hall, and the grill where they loafed in their free time was a small area in the basement of that same building.

It is quite a feat to promote a sense of togetherness with a college community the size we have today but the Dorans have managed this superbly. In addition, they have given the school more stability than it has ever had and changed its image from "that little school in the hills" to a highly respected university.

Music Department . . .

Started With One Piano

By EMMA SHADER SAMPLE
Original Faculty Member

Arriving in Morehead on a beautiful September day in 1923 to assume my duties as music instructor of the new Morehead State Normal School, I was escorted immediately to the campus. There I joined a faculty of nine and a student body of less than 100.

This was my first view of the school. Nestled at the foot of mountains covered with trees full of foliage were four buildings—two dormitories, a classroom building and a building for chapel (the center of all activities), the library and administrative offices. Burgess Hall was the only brick building. The others were wooden.

The girls' dormitory, Hodson Hall, became my home for the first year. Living facilities were very inadequate. The following year I moved to Burgess Hall, where Dr. Frank C. Button, the first president, and Mrs. Button resided. This building had steam heat and two bathrooms.

A celebration planned for the opening of school had about 5,000 people in attendance from the surrounding counties. Since the school was not equipped for serving food to very large groups, the Morehead Industrial Club assumed the responsibility for arrangements. The menu consisting of barbecued pig and burgoo was prepared by a specialist engaged for the occasion. These were prepared on the lawn of the campus and served in tin cups.

The scarcity of cars at that time created no parking problem, but the preventing of many horses from being hitched on the campus did present a problem for the day.

Because of complicated transportation the faculty could not work with other school systems. It took two days and one night for a round trip to Salyersville and this was by train and horseback.

Those students were an honest, loyal and intelligent group. They have remained loyal to their Alma Mater. This is evidenced by the fact that many of their children have received degrees from MSU and their grandchildren are now enrolled.

At this time music was just being included in the curriculum of some of the Kentucky public schools. Formerly, it was considered a luxury and only the very talented were given an opportunity for private instructions. Bands were almost non-existent except in large cities.

There was only one teacher in the music department. My hours were long—all day and part of the evening. The chapel room with a small adjoining room on the second floor of Burgess Hall became the first music classrooms. The following year, music classes were assigned to the large room, formerly the library, on the first floor of the same building.

No scholarships were offered in the field of music, and there were no music fees. Practically all of the students enrolled in music courses or participated in one or more of its organizations. Their musical experience with the exception of a few of the town students was limited to the singing of mountain ballads and hymns.

Since there was very little social life on the campus, singing became a source of great enjoyment for them. They quickly expanded their list of songs to include folk songs, rounds and various other songs.

At first a badly damaged piano was the only instrument at the school. However, Mrs. Frank Button, Mrs. William Fields and I were appointed to serve as a committee to purchase the first piano.

At the president's request, the piano was played while the students entered the chapel and the daily programs started with assembly singing. Every week the music department was required to give a chapel program.

Since only a few students had any musical training, it was essential that the first year's music program of studies be designed to meet the immediate needs of the students.

Some of the first courses offered were the Fundamentals of Music, Sight Reading, Methods and Materials for Teaching in Rural and Public Schools, Music Appreciation. Later, a study of the great composers and the History of Music were added.

An orchestra was organized the first year. Since the students were unable to purchase their own instruments, they were rented by the school from a music company at a minimum charge. The initial membership was between 20 and 25 persons. A year or two later, the school purchased some instruments for the music department. This afforded an opportunity for organizing a band.

Both of these organizations gave concerts and appeared frequently on many programs. The band led the parade in the first Armistice Day program in which the school participated. Another appearance was a 30-minute broadcast on WHAS radio in Louisville. Morehead citizens furnished cars for transportation to Louisville. After many hours of traveling and a few flat tires, we arrived there completely exhausted and just in time to go on the air.

Ensembles were formed—a string quartette and brass sextette. Piano lessons were available to a limited number.

Attractions for the first year were the Glee Club and a male quartette. The quartette became very popular.

In 1924 one of the most enjoyable programs for the Glee Club was the presentation of the operetta, "The Gypsy Rover." Surprisingly, two performances were required to accommodate the audience overflow.

In 1928, another teacher, Miss Cessna Stafford, joined the music department. This made it possible to include music in the curriculum of the Breckinridge Training School, which was located in the basement of Fields Hall, a dormitory and one of the new buildings. Miss Stafford assumed that responsibility and became director of the Morehead State Normal and Teacher's College chorus.

When I left the school in 1930, Neville Fencil was made acting head of the department until the appointment of Marvin George as band and instrumental instructor and Louis Horton as head of the department and voice and choral director.

As the school grew, the music department expanded, and now, after such a humble beginning, it has taken a top position in the music world.

I am proud to have played a very small part in the laying of the foundation for such a fine and outstanding department.

Intramural Program Progresses

The intramural program at Morehead State University has been developed around the principle that one's physical well being is of great importance in the development of a well-rounded university experience.

Realizing that every student cannot participate in the University's intercollegiate athletic programs, the MSU Department of Recreation offers competitive intramural programs, both team and individual, in 27 sports.

They include golf, flag football, archery, swimming, soccer, basketball, table tennis, weight lifting, handball, paddleball, volleyball, gymnastics, badminton, wrestling, softball, tennis, physical fitness, and track and field.

Each spring the intramural league recognizes the championship teams and individuals at the annual activities awards program. Winners receive trophies and championship shirts.

More than 5,000 students participate in the intramural program at MSU each year.

40 Win All-OVC Tag

MSU has had 40 players win first team All-OVC recognition in basketball since Sonny Allen became the first in 1948-49. Picked last season were Leonard Coulter and Howard Wallen.

"After We Sell, We Serve"

Beloved Naomi Claypool Pioneered Art Department

By NAOMI CLAYPOOL
Retired Art Chairman

In 1925, all the state colleges had art departments except Morehead so President Button hired me as the first art teacher. This was the beginning of the art department.

I was the only art teacher until 1931 when Ralph Hudson's services were acquired to teach while I finished my master's at Columbia University. His teaching was so commendable that he was made a member of the faculty.

When Mr. Hudson left in 1936, Tom Young was hired to take his place. He remained in the department until his death in 1964.

The teachers who followed were Mrs. Betty Marzan, 1964-1967; Mr. Jim Anderson, 1960-1964; and Mr. Gerald Wells, 1964-65. I retired in 1966 at the age of 70.

The art department started with two courses, school arts and crafts, and has grown to more than 50 courses.

At first, the administration was so dubious about teaching art that writing and spelling courses were emphasized. The parents thought that any kind of art work was something for which the students were punished. Crafts was quite popular. The first course had 50 students because many of the faculty wives enrolled.

There was no money allowed and fees of 50 cents were charged. Even at the prices of 1925, the fee money did not always cover all expenses. You might guess who paid them.

The first art room was on the second floor of the old administration building, now known as Rader Hall.

President John H. Payne moved the art department into the ground floor of the Johnson Camden Library.

It was during Dr. William J. Baird's administration that Dr. Bier, art editor for the Courier Journal, and head of the University of Louisville Art Department was asked to come and open the first art gallery in what was the library's reserve reading room.

It was a spacious and suitable room. Molding was put around the walls to stand the pictures. Pedestals were made for sculpture. Jewelry and ceramics were placed in the glass cases in the foyer. The first exhibit was American Art from the IBM collection and the Minneapolis Gallery. It was free since there was no money in the budget for art exhibits.

Dr. and Mrs. Doran are great art lovers and have helped the art department grow at a rapid pace. The result of their love and appreciation of good art was the Claypool-Young Art Building, which is the epitome of good modern art and architecture.

Before the Claypool-Young Art Building was built, the art department was moved into the ground floor of Allie Young Hall where the cafeteria had been.

For many years, Mr. Young and I taught all of the courses. The department now has 13 faculty members.

Naomi Claypool . . . standing by building named for her.

The students became of higher standard as the years went by because many of our graduates with art majors went into the Eastern Kentucky schools to teach.

At the age of 77, it's hard to remember the names of many students. I figure that as head of the art department for 40 years I have had 40,000 students in classes.

Harold Howe, U.S. commissioner of education, second from left, visited Morehead State University in 1966 and said the young university had "skipped the 20th century and had moved on into the 21st" with its many innovative programs. MOREHEAD STATE UNIVERSITY

MOREHEAD, KENTUCKY 40351

On behalf of the faculty, staff, students, alumni, and friends of Morehead State University I take great pleasure in extending greetings to the people of the Commonwealth of Kentucky on the occasion of our Golden Anniversary.

Morehead State University is a people's university. Her early predecessor, the Morehead Christian Normal School which was founded in 1887 by the Kentucky Christian Missionary Convention, came into being to fill a great educational and cultural void in the region. From its inception in 1922 as a state-supported institution, Morehead State University has consistently upgraded the educational, economic, and cultural levels of the region as the university has developed its missions of teaching, research and public service.

The impact of the University upon the life and affairs of every family, community and county in the region has been immeasurable. Not only has Morehead State University made great contributions to the region, but her influence has been felt throughout the Commonwealth and the nation.

This Golden Anniversary year is a unique one in the history of Morehead State University. Through such publications as this supplement and through the planned activities on the campus, much attention has been drawn to the many significant contributions made by the University in her first 50 years. But the completion of the first 50 years should be but a reminder that the second 50 years can be even more notable in achievement and in service to the people.

One's imagination is greatly excited by the challenges of the future which face Morehead State University. As we look to the future, the goals of this University must continue to be to help in building an educational system which will aid our young people in reaching their fullest potential; an economy in which everyone will find full employment; an environment both beautiful and protected; a culture of great fulfillment; and a social harmony in which we all may live in peace and understanding.

We therefore look forward to the next 50 years with great expectations, just as we look to the past with justifiable pride and satisfaction. When Morehead State University was founded 50 years ago, and when her predecessor was founded 85 years ago, little did her founders realize the level of achievement she would attain in these few years. Morehead State University must continue to soar as a Bald Eagle to even greater heights of accomplishment in the days ahead.

'The Trail Blazer' Student Newspaper For Past 45 Years

Acclaimed as one of the South's finest collegiate newspapers, "The Trail Blazer" has been the name of the MSU student newspaper for more than 45 years.

MSU's paper had no name at the time of the first publication on Tuesday, Oct. 4, 1927. The first issue had six question marks for its name.

In the first issue, William Sample, editor-in-chief, appealed to the student body for a name and offered a $5 first prize.

Mrs. Pickett M. Snedegar, a sophomore, won the $5 prize when she named the paper "The More-Head-Light". The second issue, Tuesday, Oct. 18, 1927, bore that name.

"The Trail Blazer" was chosen by a committee designed to select to a new name for the semi-weekly paper. The first issue of "The Trail Blazer" was published Oct. 10, 1929. The paper began its circulation with a 4-page, 5-column format.

In 1933, Dr. R.F. Terrell, head of the Department of Economics and Sociology, offered $3 for the best news story submitted during the semester and Prof. A.Y. Lloyd offered $2.50 for the best editorial submitted over the entire school year. The offers were made to stimulate journalistic work by the student body.

Sharon C. Willis, a sophomore from Georgetown, won the prize for her news story on the Death of Dr. Frank

C. Button. William E. Crutcher, a junior from Louisa, won the editorial prize with his essay on "Intramural Sports and Athletics."

Color was used for the first time in 1965 and the tabloid size was adopted a year earlier. The present 4-column format started in 1965.

The Trail Blazer became a member of the Kentucky Intercollegiate Press Association in 1969 and, at the same time, became a weekly publication permanently and accepted national advertising for the first time.

"The Trail Blazer" has expanded from the original four pages to the current 8-to-12 page publication. W. David Brown, assistant professor of journalism, is the current advisor. Students are encouraged to take advantage of the staff positions available on the paper. It gives those interested in journalism an opportunity to display and cultivate their skills.

The paper is distributed free to students and faculty members and to recent graduates.

University Helps Boost Farm Income

With economic problems forcing more and more small Kentucky farmers off the land and into the cities, Morehead State University is seeking better farming methods to boost small-farm incomes.

MSU President Adron Doran feels the institutions can add much to the farm economy of the Eastern Kentucky region.

"Government officials, academic leaders and agricultural economists alike have, for some time now, been concerned with the problem of the small farmer in Kentucky," Dr. Doran said. "He is the man with a few acres who often gives up the ghost and goes to Detroit or Dayton, depleting the agricultural economy as well as the regional population charts."

With this thought in mind, and also realizing that many trained agricultural students leave Kentucky for employment elsewhere, Dr. Doran and MSU agriculture staffers are making the university a focal point in the future of Eastern Kentucky agriculture.

Determined to meet the needs of MSU agriculture students and farmers in the region as well, the university in 1968, purchased a 197-acre farm in the rolling hillside country of Rowan County.

Agriculture students operate the farm and live in a modern duplex facility, daily commuting five miles to classes on campus.

The men (no girls have participated in the farm laboratory program, although some women are enrolled in other agriculture classes) scheduled and rotate the farm chores under the direction of Dr. Charles Derrickson, head of the Department of Agriculture, and farm manager Roger Eckstein.

Many Operational Facets

Eckstein and his family live in the farm's colonial home, restored and redecorated by Mrs. Doran and Derrickson.

"The total farm operation consists of many components which have been planned to illustrate the type of buildings and programs Eastern Kentucky farmers can construct or apply on their own farms," Dr. Doran explained.

"We want to keep the young people in this region by encouraging them to apply known agricultural facts to the land back home," he said. "With the tobacco program looking rather bleak, we are trying to use our 197-acre laboratory to develop programs that can replace tobacco income, should it vanish from the scene."

"The farm's poultry, beef cattle and swine projects are just a few examples of what our students and local farmers can do with a small farm like this back home," Dr. Derrickson added.

The university's feeder pig operation, for instance, is most suitable for Eastern Kentucky because of the minimal land required.

Likewise, the farm's rough pasture land is sufficient for the beef cattle operation. Presently, the MSU herd consists of 20 registered polled Herefords and 12 registered Angus cows, most of which were donated by various breeding associations.

The goal of the beef program is to provide high-quality animals which can be sold to Eastern Kentucky farmers at a reasonable price as "seed stock."

Has Two Greenhouses

Another phase of the beef program is the experience gained by students in breaking and grooming the animals for show. A modern show arena on the farm is used by local 4-H and FFA members and for horse shows.

Two experimental fiberglass greenhouses give students experience in many phases of horticulture. The houses are used to produce out-of-season vegetables and all types of flowering plants.

The tobacco operation works on an 8,400-pound allotment, with proper attention to poundage, quality, housing and curing. The MSU staff is taking advantage of research and experimentation by tobacco specialists, and is showing the small farmer how to apply them to Eastern Kentucky.

Plans for expansion call for the development of a riding academy adjacent to the show arena, a nursery operation, an agricultural mechanical center, a livestock pavilion, and small fruit demonstration plots.

Basically, it's an all-around ideal Eastern Kentucky farm operation. The main objective is to train students in a realistic situation, find answers to regional farm problems and present a practical, efficient family farm operation as an example for farmers of the region.

The farm is located on Ky. 377, north of Morehead. Visitors are welcome.

GOING UP . . . This construction picture of Mignon Tower, a women's residence hall, was taken in 1966. At the time of its construction, the 16-story tower was the tallest building on campus. It has since been surpassed by 19-story Cartmell Hall.

The Eagles

In the fall of 1926, J.M. Clayton, a Morehead businessman, announced he would sponsor a contest to select a nickname and a song for the athletic teams at the town's new state college.

Miss Peaches Ellis, now Mrs. Jack Cecil of Morehead, submitted "Bald Eagles" as a name suggestion and won the $10 first prize. A song was also chosen but it since has been changed.

"Bald Eagle" was used for a few years but it eventually was shortened to "Eagles" for the sake of convenience.

Eagle athletes have proudly worn the name for more than 46 years.

42 Football Teams

Prior to the 1972 season, Morehead State University had fielded 42 football teams since adopting the sport on an intercollegiate basis in 1927. The Eagle gridders had won 146, lost 180 and tied 17.

George Dewey Downing was MSU's first coach and athletic director. He served 13 years and has been honored by the naming of MSU's athletic residence hall in his honor.

George Young Recalls First Day At M'head

By GEORGE T. YOUNG
Assoc. Prof., Political Science

I was met at the door by Lizzie France, the housekeeper, and behind her was Dr. John Howard Payne waiting to escort me from his home to my first and only job I have ever had. It was a brisk spring day, Thursday, April 7, 1932, to be exact. As we walked by the unfinished Senff Natatorium, the newly-occupied library came into view. It, to this day, is still the loveliest of all of our campus buildings.

In passing Thompson Hall, the only boys' dorm, I was introduced to "Ma" Blessing, who still remains the only woman director of a men's dormitory in the school's history. We proceeded to enter Breckinridge and, after meeting Mr. Lappin, the school's director, we went to a small practice room on the second floor of the west end. There I was introduced to my geometry class which had been organized the day before during spring registration.

When the door closed behind me I was off on a job that has spanned three generations and more than 40 years.

Under President John Howard Payne, my first boss, I think of fine oratory and his famous speech, "Armageddon," for which he was known statewide. I recall the wonderful bath showers at Columbia as his inducement for my going to school there.

I can see it now, a private dining room for the faculty which once stood at the east end of Allie Young Hall. The steam wagon came in from the kitchen and students would serve us. I recall the King's Jesters, a college dance band and the beautiful dancers we played for on the roof garden of Allie Young or in old Button Gymnasium with no break cards and the long formal receiving lines.

The Social Committee and the faculty members sought membership on it. The county clubs were early centers of social life for the college students.

The early years of the Breck Minstrel Club, the Winter Carnival and the White Elephant sales make fond memories even though I have space to mention them only in passing. The Breck and College faculty met jointly in a room on the east end on the main floor of the Administration Building. It was so good to live here in these days when teachers, staff and students were so close to each other.

In the middle of the 30's and until 1940 we had a change in college leadership. Looking back on this period, I can see it now as one of witch hunting, revulsion anxiety and of mistakes. In a sense this period made for future greatness. Humans and institutions, in their infancy, reach maturity through first experiencing growing pains.

Giving self reached its peak when, for hours following the flash flood of July 5, 1939, every human on campus who was physically able went out to feed and clothe the flood victims.

For six years, beginning in 1940, Dr. William H. Vaughn, a former college dean, was president. I had, at one time, lived in his home and was well acquainted with him.

The beginning of our graduate programs appeared during his tenure. I always link President Vaughn with Pearl Harbor Day. I sat in the family pew at the Methodist Church that Sunday morning, took dinner with them in their home and later on that afternoon I learned of the attack while rehearsing the Breck Minstrel Show. The next month I volunteered for service in the U.S. Army Air Force and he was the only one who knew it when I left town to be sworn in. I never saw him again until my return to Breckinridge in November, 1945.

A return to a more normal life began with the advent of Dr. William Baird. Accreditation was regained. This furnished the first ingredient for the beginning of a new foundation on which the greatness of this school, through the untiring efforts of Dr. Adron Doran, rests today. Dr. Baird brought love of color, refinement and dignity and a love for the classics and local winters to our campus.

I can see it now that he was so right in urging me to transform the Blackface Minstrel into an all-white musical revue but the complete changeover did not come until after his death.

Dr. Charles Spain had short tenure and was Dr. Doran's immediate predecessor. He tried to make our campus known to colleges far away from Kentucky by bringing in famous speakers from major universities. He offered our campus as a site for state, regional and national meetings.

The school had experienced and conquered enough growing up pains for the beginnings of maturity to set in and I can see it now that Dr. Doran was the man to meet the challenge. Under his leadership, the school has experienced two different periods of expansion and reorganization of faculty and administration prior to being given university status on June 16, 1966.

This school has experienced unprecedented growth in physical plant since 1954. I am deeply indebted to Dr. and Mrs. Doran and to others, living and deceased, who have had a part in making this school the great institution that it is today.

There are a few more things that seem to come into my mind that I would like to mention. Miss Lucille M. Catlett was so good in helping me to get adjusted to the campus. Miss Amy I. Moore and Miss Juanita Minish helped me to become a better teacher.

The devotion and loyalty of Miss Anna Carter to her presidents will always be remembered by me. In periods of stress and peace, Dr. Warren C. Lappin has had more stabilizing influence on the school over a longer period of time than any other single individual to ever hold a job here.

I would have never been able to produce the Breck Minstrel Show if Tom Young had not been with me, year after year, to help direct it.

I am glad to still be a part of this great school.

'Big' Names Appear Annually At MSU

Special cultural, entertainment and informational programs abound at MSU during the academic year with an average of three major events each month.

The Student Government Association Entertainment Series, financed with a $10 per semester fee by full-time students, brings to the campus top names in popular music. SGA also sponsors a series of six student-produced plays in the MSU Theatre.

The Concert and Lecture Series, financed through student fees and memberships purchased by non-students, concentrates on programs of serious music, touring theatrical productions and nationally-known speakers.

In addition, the MSU Alumni Association sponsors a weekend of high-powered attractions at Homecoming each year with major entertainers appearing Thursday and Friday nights, a national political leader on Friday afternoon and the traditional dances on Saturday night after the football game.

Headlining this year's Golden Anniversary Homecoming are U.S. Sen. Thomas Eagleton (D-Mo.), pop singer Stevie Wonder and comic-pianist Victor Borge. SGA cooperates in the planning and financing of part of the Homecoming schedule.

Other SGA-sponsored activities during the year include coffee houses at the Adron Doran University Center, low-priced movies at Button Auditorium and television replays of MSU's road football games in the Ohio Valley Conference.

Music programs are almost a nightly occurrence at Baird Music Hall where the MSU Music Department offers a variety of free recitals, concerts and clinics in vocal and instrumental music.

Art exhibits are on constant display at the tri-level gallery in the Claypool-Young Art Building and on the top floor of the Johnson Camden Library.

The Miss MSU Pageant, a two-night preliminary of the Miss Kentucky competition, is a major attraction each spring.

Dances are scheduled weekly by various student organizations and festivals, fairs and other outings dot the university calendar.

Guest lecturers appear frequently at convocations and in individual classes under sponsorship of academic departments.

The caliber of MSU's cultural, entertainment and informational offerings is indicated by this partial list of programs from the last three years:

Gov. Wendell H. Ford presented him with a copy of the following resolution which was adopted earlier that day by the House of Representatives:

A RESOLUTION to recognize the Golden Anniversaries of Murray State and Morehead State Universities.

WHEREAS, March 8, 1922 is a significant date in the history of public higher education in the Commonwealth of Kentucky, the date on which Governor Edwin P. Morrow signed Senate Bill No. 14, introduced by the Honorable Brig H. Harris of Catlettsburg, which authorized the establishment of two normal schools and the appropriation of moneys for their operation; and

WHEREAS, this legislation resulted from a conscientious and meticulous study, authorized by the 1920 session of the General Assembly creating a five-member Education Commission, which was appointed by Governor Morrow, indicating a need for the expansion of facilities for public higher education in the Commonwealth; and

WHEREAS, the state's chief executive in his January, 1922, message to the General Assembly included the Education Commission's recommendation for "one and probably two teacher-training institutions" and then added his personal firm conviction that "education is an investment; ignorance is a tax;" and

WHEREAS, this bill, which was enacted with very few dissenting votes in either the House or the Senate, created an eight-member State Normal Commission to study and select sites for one normal school in the western section of the state and one normal school in the eastern section of the state; and

WHEREAS, the State Normal School Commission, composed of distinguished and qualified leaders, chose the city of Murray as the location of the new normal school to serve the western section, and the city of Morehead as the location of the new normal school to serve the eastern section of the state; and

WHEREAS, these institutions, originally called State Normal Schools, but later serving the Commonwealth as State Teachers Colleges, State Colleges, and since July 1966, as State Universities, are today formally opening the multiphased observance of the Golden Anniversary of their establishment; and

WHEREAS, these institutions have had a highly significant impact upon the regions which they serve; and

WHEREAS these universities have grown into nationally-recognized universities with broad diversity of curricula and with distinguished graduates who have rendered services to the Commonwealth and to the nation of inestimable value;

NOW, THEREFORE,

Be it resolved by the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky:

That the House of Representatives of the 1972 session of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky does hereby go on record as formally recognizing the achievements and the valuable services rendered by Murray State University and Morehead State University to the Commonwealth and to the nation; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED: That the House of Representatives extends its sincerest congratulations to all those connected with Murray State University and Morehead State University for continued success in their endeavors, and expresses its hopes that the contributions made and the services rendered by these universities during the next fifty years will be as great as the accomplishments of the past fifty years; and

FURTHERMORE: That the House of Representatives commends the distinguished statesmen who have served as presidents of these universities during these first fifty years of their existence and that the House of Representatives pays special tribute to Dr. Harry M. Sparks and to Dr. Adron Doran for their current leadership at these two great, emerging universities."

First Appropriation By Legislature $30,000

The 1922 session of the Kentucky General Assembly appropriated $30,000 for the new school at Morehead "to hire a faculty, provide the necessary supplies and to put the school in working order."

Using the campus of two formerly private schools, Morehead State Normal School began the 1923 school year with nine faculty members, an enrollment of three college students and 70 students in the secondary school.

At first, the Morehead State curriculum consisted of two divisions: the normal school program and the college program.

No drastic program changes were made until 1926. Prior to this time only two years of college work were offered. Every student entering the institution on the college level had to take education courses since no program leading to a liberal arts degree was available.

Students were required to select three fields for emphasis. One was designated a major field and the other two were minors. Students could elect a major from nine fields.

Majors were offered in chemistry and physics, biology and botany, geography, mathematics and physics, English and expression, English, history and political science, history and sociology and foreign language. Minors could be picked from any available field.

The Board of Regents were authorized by a legislative act in 1924 to issue three types of teaching certificates: college elementary, standard elementary and college certificate.

Each teaching certificate was valid for two years with 16 hours of college-level work and could be renewed only on the completion of 16 or more additional work. Each certificate was valid for three years with 64 semester hours of college-level courses.

Each certificate was valid for three years with 128 hours of college work and was renewed for life upon completion of three years of successful teaching experience.

In 1930, the college was accredited by the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges and one year later by the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education. The Normal School was discontinued during the 1931-32 academic year.

Four Departments Added

At the beginning of the 1930-31 school term, a program of study leading to either the Bachelor of Science or Bachelor of Arts degree without a teaching certificate was offered.

During the 1930's the college expanded its course offerings and added several new areas of study. Four new departments: speech, commerce, library science and industrial arts were added to the 12 existing departments.

By the 1936-37 academic year, 180 courses were offered with the greatest increases occurring in the Department of Science which offered 45 courses. Social sciences had 35 and education 30.

By 1939, a student could select a major from 14 areas. A graduate program leading to master's degrees in education and to the provisional certificate began in the late 1930's.

By 1949, a total of 501 separate courses were offered. This number had increased to 644 courses by the 1963-64 school year.

Became University In 1966

In the 1960's the curriculum was reorganized by grouping related disciplines into broad fields called divisions.

In 1966, the institution was granted university status and in 1967 its eight divisions of study were merged into five academic schools: Education, Sciences and Mathematics, Applied Sciences and Technology, Humanities and Social Sciences. Under these five schools were 24 divisions and departments.

In the fall of 1968 military science was offered for the first time and in 1971 it was placed on a voluntary basis.

An additional school, Business and Economics, was formed in 1972 with the departments of accounting, business administration, business education and economics.

MSU currently offers five bachelors degrees in 60 areas, eight master's degrees in 16 areas, specialist degrees in three areas and associate degrees in 24 areas.

In the 1972 fall semester the university offered nearly 1,400 separate classes. There are now more than 350 faculty members.

ACHIEVEMENT AWARD . . . Ted Crosthwait of Frankfort, executive secretary of the Kentucky Teachers Retirement System, received the Outstanding Alumnus Award in 1968. He is a past president of the Alumni Association.

Doran Tenure Longest

Dr. Adron Doran has served nearly three times as long as any of his six predecessors in the presidency of Morehead State University. He was inaugurated in 1954 and is in his 19th year at the MSU helm.

THAT'S A DEAL . . . While visiting in the office of Gov. Bert T. Combs during the Prestonsburg native's term of office, MSU President Adron Doran commented on how he would like to have the rocker he observed in the corner of Combs office. Combs replied, "Alright, but it will cost you the same as it cost me," and he sold the rocker to Dr. Doran. The rocker stayed in the president's office for a number of years and now is the property of Terry McBrayer, an MSU graduate from Greenup, who is a member of the state legislature.

War Ends Career

Former MSU standout Tommy Gray, the OVC's football Player of the Year in 1966, was forced to give up professional football because of wounds he received in Vietnam. Gray, who now coaches in his native Birmingham, Ala., played one year with the San Francisco 49'ers before being inducted into the Army.

Cannon In Corner

In the northeast corner of MSU's Breathitt Sports Center Stadium sits the SAE Cannon which is fired to salute each Eagle scoring play. The "ammunition" is black powder and paper wadding. The cannon was donated by Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, formerly known as the Campus Club.

61 Have Served On Board Of Regents

With the appointment this summer of two new members, Morehead State University's Board of Regents has involved 61 persons in voluntary service since the first board was formed in 1924.

The total membership has included 43 private citizens, 11 state superintendents of public instruction, five students and two faculty members.

Dr. W.H. Cartmell, the current chairman, is the first layman to head the board. His 11 predecessors served by virtue of their elected position as state superintendent of public instruction.

The Kentucky General Assembly recently expanded the board to eight citizen members and removed the state school superintendent from membership.

Dr. Cartmell, a Maysville surgeon, is in his 17th year on the board and has served longer than any other person. B.F. Reed of Drift, a coal executive, ranks second in length of service with 16 years. He was appointed in 1953 for one year, renamed to the board in 1958 and has been reappointed every four years since.

Other members of the current board and year of appointment include Lloyd Cassity, Ashland dairy executive, 1963; Cloyd McDowell, Harlan coal operator, 1966; Jerry F. Howell, Jackson banker, 1968; Charles D. Wheeler, Ashland businessman, 1969; Crayton (Bo) Queen, Mt. Sterling auto dealer, 1972; and William E. Justice, Pikeville realtor and banker, 1972.

Dr. M. E. Pryor, professor of biology, is the faculty representative. He was elected in 1971. The board's other faculty delegate was Dr. Frank Mangrum, professor of philosophy, who served from 1968 until 1971.

The current student member is Pete Marcum, Louisville junior and president of the MSU Student Government Association. SGA presidents serve as board members if they are Kentucky residents. If not, another person is chosen by the student body.

Quentin Hatfield of McCarr, Ky. was the first student member, serving briefly in 1968. Others and their academic years of membership were W.A. (Bill) Bradford of Russell, 1968-69 and 1969-70; Jack Sims of Munfordville 1970-71; and Mike Mayhew of Morehead, 1971-72.

Both the student and faculty representatives now have full voting rights as a result of the new law which became effective this summer.

The board's membership of private citizens has included four women. Mrs. W.J. Fields of Olive Hill was appointed to the original board and served a four-year term. Mrs. S. M. Bradley of Morehead was a member from 1928 until 1932. Mrs. Allie W. Young of Morehead had three terms, starting in 1936. The most recent woman member was Mrs. E.E. Shannon of Louisa, who served from 1958 to 1960.

Morehead State showed its appreciation to those who have served on the board when, in 1963, it named Regents Hall, a four-story men's residence building, in their honor.

Of the 11 state superintendents of public instruction who have served as board chairmen at MSU, only one has had more than one term. Wendell P. Butler, for whom MSU's Butler Hall was named, has held the office three times and has 12 years as chairman. His terms were 1952-56, 1960-64 and 1968-72.

Dr. Lyman V. Ginger, the current state superintendent, served earlier this year before the reorganization law became effective.

Other chairmen and terms have included McHenry Rhoads, 1924-28; W. C. Bell, 1928-32; James H. Richmond, 1932-36; Harry W. Peters, 1936-40; John W. Brooker, 1940-44; John F. Williams, 1944-48; Boswell W. Hodgkin, 1948-52; Robert R. Martin, 1956-60; and Harry M. Sparks, 1964-68.

The 35 private citizens who have served on the board in the past came from 22 cities and towns, mostly in Eastern Kentucky.

Morehead has had five members with Olive Hill, Ashland and Paintsville contributing three each. Maysville, Hazard and Louisa each have had two.

The list of former members includes:

MOREHEAD — Allie W. Young (1924-35), Mrs. S. M. Bradley (1928-32), D.B. Caudill (1934-36), Mrs. Allie W. Young (1933-48), and Roy E. Cornette (1944-48).

A FUNNY STORY . . . U.S. Rep. Carl D. Perkins, the popular 7th District congressman from Hindman, has appeared on the Morehead State University campus many times during the past two decades. He is shown here with MSU President Adron Doran.

THE CHAMPS — The 1966 football team at Morehead State University is generally considered to be the school's best in modern times. Coach Guy Penny's gridders compiled a 7-2 mark and won the OVC championship with a 21-19 win over Eastern Kentucky in the final game. Penny was named the league's "Coach of the Year" and halfback Tommie Gray, who scored 14 touchdowns, was voted the "Offensive Player of the Year."

'Honie' Rice: Long A Campus Favorite

As long as people appreciate good stories and good men, they will remember W.H. (Honie) Rice at Morehead State University.

The 67-year-old former superintendent of buildings and grounds retired in July 1969, but he left a rich legacy of humorous anecdotes from his almost 39 years of being the chief "fixit man" on campus.

Like the time, several years ago, when a distraught coed ran away from her dormitory after threatening to kill herself over an unhappy romance. The dorm director and the girl's roommates found her on a hill overlooking the campus.

"Honie" was called for assistance and arrived at the dorm just as the search party and the weeping coed were returning.

He asked if he could be of help and the dorm director asked, "Can you mend a broken heart?" His reply is immortal. "Why not? I've fixed everything else around here."

Or the time when several football players decided they needed a day off from classes. They fastened the front door of the main classroom building with a log chain and announced a strike.

He Ended The Strike

Rice was called to reopen the building and he marched up to the front door with a pair of bolt cutters in his hand. Some of the players protested but "Honie," a former football great at Kentucky muscled his 6-2, 240-pound frame up to the door and snapped the chain with a classic pronouncement.

"Strike's over," he said. And sure enough, it was.

Two facets of "Honie" Rice's character have never been questioned at MSU — his wit and his devotion to the university.

From the time he joined the staff of a small, struggling teachers college in early 1931, to the time he retired from a vibrant, growing university, he was the man people relied on to keep the physical plant operating.

President Adron Doran and the MSU Board of Regents asked him to reconsider his retirement but he politely refused. He agreed, however, to serve MSU in a consultant capacity.

"It's time for a younger man to take over," the strapping civil engineer said of his decision at the time. "They got a good man to take my place and he does a better job of keeping up with the pace."

The pace has been breathtaking, especially since 1954 when Dr. Doran became the University's seventh president. What used to be a sleepy little college with 350 students and seven buildings has grown into a regional university with more than 50 major structures and nearly 6,500 students.

Rice started with a staff of seven and eventually ran a department of more than 200.

"I feel good about my years at Morehead because I always did my best," he said. "Whatever I am, I did it here."

Two Facilities Named For Rice

In addition to recognition as one of the top physical plant administrators in the country, "Honie" has a unique distinction on the MSU campus. He is the only person to have two facilities named in his honor.

The W.H. Rice Maintenance Service Building, a $227,000 structure, and Riceville, a 20-unit complex of houses for married students, signify the university's gratitude for his lifelong service.

"Honie" hasn't been the only family member connected with MSU. His wife, Virginia, retired on the same day after 22 years as an assistant professor of education.

One of his two sons, Lucien H. Rice, graduated from Morehead State and is a Boy Scout executive in New Jersey. He is a past president of the MSU Alumni Association.

"Cave Man," as Rice was called during the days when he played tackle for UK, enjoys bridge, baseball and MSU sports in his retirement. He is active in the Blue Grass Boy Scout Council.

"I feel like a famous baseball player who's had his uniform number retired," said "Honie." "It's a good feeling."

AWARD . . . J. Phil Smith, president of the First National Bank of Jackson, was named an Outstanding Alumnus of MSU in 1966. The award is sponsored by the Alumni Association.

$70 Million Campus

It would cost upwards of $70 million to replace the land and more than 50 major structures which comprise the MSU campus. Nearly $60 million has been expended in capital construction since 1954. Including the university farm, MSU's real estate holdings consist of more than 700 acres.

STUDENT HOUSING . . . MSU's Lakewood Terrace, containing 124 studio and one-bedroom apartments, was built in 1960 and 1962 as the first new married student housing facilities on campus. Added in 1967 was Normal Hall, a 40-unit apartment building. MSU also owns 147 one-bedroom mobile homes at three locations and 21 unfurnished houses. Totally, the university has 332 housing units available for married students.

Good Athletic Facilities

MSU's athletic facilities include a 10,000-seat stadium with an eight-lane, quarter-mile oval track, a 5,000-seat gymnasium, a nine-hole golf course, an indoor swimming pool, eight all-weather tennis courts, a baseball park and lighted soccer field.

In 20th Year

Robert G. (Bobby) Laughlin, MSU's director of athletics, is in his 20th year on the job. He has been devoting full time to the post since 1965 when he gave up basketball coaching. "Coach" Laughlin is a full professor on the MSU faculty.

The Contrast . . .

Singularity And Diversity

By DR. CHARLES PELFREY
Professor of English

During my final year of undergraduate study at Morehead State College, I was allowed the freedom of the stacks of the library. To the senior of today such a privilege would be taken for granted, I suspect, and the ranging through rows of books would seem of little moment in the current welter of media.

To me the great difference between the unaccredited state college which I attended from 1946 to 1949 (and which gained re-accreditation in time to make my diploma of worth) lies primarily in the contrast between singularity and diversity.

In our diversity, the privilege of us using at will the resources of the library probably would bear little note as a memorable stage in the progress of one's education. Or so it would seem until one remembers that learning is by nature singular, inevitably an individual event, whether it take place at a small college or a large university.

Today's student may well find amid all the opportunities of the university something memorable, too, just as I found something that academic year by browsing in Johnson Camden Library.

I had, I think, been adequately schooled to make good use of the privilege of the stacks, for I had been ably instructed, although the faculty numbered approximately only twice as many as the current Division of Languages and Literature. At the time, however, I would not have said with confidence that I had been ably instructed for rumors were that the Morehead graduate would fare poorly in the larger world of advanced study.

My experience in competition with graduates of Columbia, Wayne State, Michigan, and other colleges and universities proved the rumors false. Thus, under the tutelage of Humphrey, Banks, Miles, Fowler, Exelbirt and Rader in the majors and of Carey, Wilkes, Braun, Walters, Reed, Overstreet, Bach and Graves in general education and electives, I was ready in 1948 to discover what else the world of knowledge as represented by the meager collection in the library had to offer.

Heir Of Two Revolutions

With so much diversity, with so many from whom to gather instruction, with the range of resources not even known to him, the student of 1972 may well feel uncertain, lost, and abandoned in a sea of abundance. He, indeed, must be resilient and tougher than I and my fellows of 1946 through 1949. To me the most influential factor of the college was the faculty. To him the most influential factor of the university is likely to be his fellow students or the administration.

The student of 1972 is the heir of two revolutions in education: The paperback revolution and the audio-visual and media revolution. In 1948 we were innocent of multi-texted courses with corollary readings available in inexpensive editions at the bookstore. I cannot recall having seen a single film or slide presentation in any of my classes during the six semesters and two summer terms of undergraduate study. Today the university bookstore and the audio-visual and media resources figure as significantly in academic experience, I suspect, as did the library and lecture in 1948.

In my period of study here there were two women's dorms, Fields Hall and Allie Young Hall, and two men's dorms, Men's Hall and Thompson Hall. Thompson was the residence of the more boisterous men. I resided in quiet, reserved Men's Hall, which was legended among its inhabitants as the scene of an intrepid foray by Dean Lappin who disarmed an ardent student entertaining himself by shooting out the transom of his room with a revolver. (Classes were held in two buildings, the Administration Building (now Rader Hall) and the Science Building (now Lappin Hall). The cafeteria was in the basement of Allie Young Hall and the post office and bookstore in the Administration Building. The library was the most elevated of all the buildings, which struck me as fitting.

Impressed At Social Life

The administration, too, was in keeping with the rest of the college — small and not very noticeable. I knew little of President William J. Baird but had an immense respect for him. I was aware that Miss Anna Carter was his secretary. Dean Lappin could look over a student's schedule with a discernment of flaws and perfections so acute as to be little short of wizardry.

As for the Dean of Students, I have little memory of him. Mr. Jackson was the dorm director of Men's Hall and he grew prosperous looking tomato plants in view of his apartment windows.

Social life in 1946 — 49 impressed me least of all at the college. The weekends were short, beginning at noon Saturday. Even so, on a typical weekend the campus lay silent and deserted. But I did not seek much social life, and I felt little constraint from my fellows or the college to "take part."

Whatever distinctive contribution the college had to make to my education proved to be more academic than social. I felt no strong pressures for it to be otherwise. Perhaps we were more tolerant of loneliness then. Crowds did not press upon one, classes were small, the sidewalks could hardly be called "teeming." Clubs were not intrusive.

Probably it would seem to the student of 1972 as a virtual desert of social opportunity. But I found Tagor and Jeffers, among others.

FACULTY AWARD . . . Dr. Charles Pelfrey, professor of English at MSU, received the 1971 Distinguished Faculty Award, presented by the Alumni Association.

RECEIVES ARMY AWARD . . . MSU President Adron Doran was presented the Army's Outstanding Civilian Service Medal in 1970 by Gen. George Forsythe. The award is the highest civilian recognition given by the Army and was presented because of Dr. Doran's significant contributions in establishing an outstanding ROTC unit at Morehead State University.

Seven Residents

The MSU President's Home has been the domicile of all seven of the university's presidents. Completed in 1929, its first occupant was Dr. Frank C. Button, the first president. Dr. and Mrs. Adron Doran has been in residence since 1954.

PEP RALLY . . . MSU's cheerleaders lead a pep rally in front of the Doran Student House in 1957.

"I HEARD THAT THE ORGANIST HAS BEEN ROOMING WITH THE PRESIDENT FOR OVER 40 YEARS!"

KENNEDY VISIT . . . During his visit to the MSU campus in 1966, Senator Ted Kennedy spoke to an overflow crowd in the fieldhouse. A reception following in the multi purpose room of the health building. He is shown here shaking hands with D.H. Dorton, a member of the Board of Regents from Paintsville who died earlier this year.

PUBLIC SERVICE AWARD — Former Gov. Louie B. Nunn, recipient of MSU's Public Service Award in 1971, presents the 1972 award to B.F. Reed of Drift, Ky., a 16-year member of the MSU Board of Regents and the person for whom MSU's newest classroom building has been named. The awards are sponsored by the Alumni Association.

Five Bureaus At MSU

Morehead State's administrative structure is composed of five bureaus — academic affairs, fiscal affairs, research and development, student affairs and university affairs. Each is headed by a vice president.

Kozee, Whitt, Composed MSU Song

MSU's present Alma Mater was written in 1952 when Elwood Kozee won a song contest sponsored by the then Student Council. Betty Jo Whitt, a 1952 graduate, composed the music to accompany Kozee's lyrics.

Kozee's winning entry was:

"Far above the rolling campus
Resting in the dale,
Stands our dear Ole Alma Mater,
Her name we'll always hail.
Shout in chorus, lift our voices,
Blue and gold praise thee,
Winning through to fame and glory,
Dear Old MSC.
May her name e'er be a leader
Through the years to come.
See, above, the waving banners
For a victory won.
Shout her name, all you Eagles:
Blue and gold will be
Winning through to fame and glory
For Old MSC."

When the institution attained university status in 1966, "thee" was changed to "you" and MSC became MSU.

However, Kozee's version of the Alma Mater was not the original school song. Prof. Lewis Henry Horton, who headed MSU's Department of Music from 1930 through 1942, had written words and music for "A Song to Morehead" in 1930.

The Alma Mater written by Kozee, who is now an Ashland psychiatrist, was written after the "Teachers" was dropped from the school's name.

Prof. Horton's song replaced the "Morehead State Normal School Song," which was sung to the air of "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Land Of Brown Grass

The turf at MSU's Breathitt Sports Center Stadium always turns brown when the first frost comes each fall. The field is comprised of Bermuda grass, the same strong-rooted plant used in golf course greens.

REED HALL . . . The new $3.5 million Appalachian Technical Institute will be housed in Boyd F. Reed Hall, named for the coal company executive from Drift, and member of the MSU Board of Regents. He has served under more governors than any other person on the MSU board. Reed served as chairman of the Eastern Kentucky Development Council which was responsible for the formulation on the concept of the Appalachian Regional Commission. Reed Hall, upon its completion, will have five floors of classrooms, offices and parking.

MIGNON COMPLEX . . . Dominating the north side of the campus is the Mignon Complex, a U-shaped grouping of four air-conditioned residence halls housing 976 women. The project was completed in 1967 with the occupancy of 16-story Mignon Tower. Six-story Mignon

Hall was opened in 1963; five story West Mignon Hall in 1964 and six-story East Mignon Hall in 1966. The complex was named for Mrs. Mignon Doran, wife of MSU's seventh president and founder and director of the MSU Personal Development Institute.

GINGER HALL . . . The 9-story Education Building was recently named for the current state superintendent of public instruction, Dr. Lyman V. Ginger. He formerly was dean of the College of Education at the University of Kentucky and is the only Kentuckian to have served as president and treasurer of the National Education Association. Dr. Ginger is a former chairman of the MSU Board of Regents.

CASSITY BUILDING . . . The Industrial Arts-Home Economics Building was recently named the Lloyd Cassity Building to honor the popular MSU graduate who has served on the Board of Regents since April, 1963. He is president of Johnson All-Star Dairy in Ashland and is a past president of the MSU Alumni Association.

FDR JR. . . The year 1961 brought Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Jr. to the hills of Eastern Kentucky to help coordinate the Appalachian Compact created by an executive order of President John F. Kennedy. Roosevelt, left, is shown here with MSU President Adron Doran, who served as chairman of the Appalachian Compact Education Committee, and with then Gov. Bert Combs, who served as chairman of the Appalachian Compact. The picture was taken at a meeting in Prestonsburg.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY . . . On Sept. 1, 1971, friends from throughout the region gathered in Morehead to honor MSU President Adron Doran on his birthday. Willie Dawahare, the popular former mayor of Hazard and owner of Dawahare clothing stores, is shown here presenting the president with a new coat and colorful bow ties.

COOPER HONORED . . . Senator and Mrs. John Sherman Cooper were honored at a reception soon after Cooper Hall was occupied in 1966. Senator and Mrs. Cooper are shown here with President and Mrs. Doran and a charming coed at the reception. Senator Cooper, who is retiring at the end of his current term, has long been a friend of Morehead State University.

The Morehead Christian School was started in this (the only) building back in 1887. F.C. Button and his daughter lived downstairs and taught school upstairs. This building was located on the corner of the lot on which now stands the Adron Doran University Center.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY GIFT . . . Murray State University President Harry Sparks presented Morehead State University President Adron Doran a print of "Oakhurst," the president's home at Murray, as part of the Golden Anniversary Celebrations of the two universities. Earlier, Dr. Doran presented Sparks with the "Golden Goose Egg" trophy which went to the president of the losing team in the "Battle of the Gold" between Morehead State and Murray State. Morehead State won the football game, 27-24.

IT'S OFFICIAL . . . Gov. Edward T. Breathitt, Jr. signed the bill in 1966 changing Morehead State College to Morehead State University and it was a happy day for the Moreheadians involved. Shown here with then Gov. Breathitt are, from left, Dr. Ray Hornback, vice president for university affairs; Dr. Harry Mayhew, director of university services and former director of alumni affairs; Brenda Arnett Ingle, an MSU graduate and daughter of then State Rep. Sherman Arnett; and President Adron Doran.

FIRST LADIES VIEW PORTRAIT . . . Mrs. Louie B. Nunn, right and Mrs. Adron Doran, left, are shown inspecting the portrait of Mrs. Nunn which is displayed in the lobby of Nunn Hall, a 10-story, $2.5 million women's residence hall dedicated in 1969 at Morehead State University. The structure was named in honor of Mrs. Nunn.

MSU'S GOLF COURSE

Morehead State University acquired its own nine-hole golf course in 1967 by purchasing the former Sunnybrook course on U.S. 60, east of Morehead. The 3,000-yard layout is used by golf classes, the golf team, students, faculty, staff and the general public.

OVC "Year" Honorees

Morehead State University's Guy Penny was named the Ohio Valley Conference's "Coach of the Year" when the Eagles last won the OVC football title in 1966. MSU tailback Tommie Gray was picked as the "Offensive Player of the Year" after scoring 84 points on 14 touchdowns.
